JURY ACCUSES WARD OF BRIBERY PLOT

HESS ADDRESS SHOWS NAZIS IN NEW GARB

REVERSED ATTITUDE HAS NEIGHBORS GUESSING

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Copyright 1934, By The Associated Press)

Berlin, July 9 (AP)—An apparent softening of the Nazi attitude toward Germany's neighbors and the great powers brought a siege of callers today to foreign diplomatic missions in Berlin, seeking to know the meaning behind the adress of Cabinet Minister Rudolf Hess.

The official German version that this was the greatest peace speech of modern times did not seem to satisfy foreign observers, and significance was sought behind Hess' flattery of Louis Barthou, the French foreign minister, and his lavish compliments to the French nation, especially to her war veterans.

The fact that Hess, recently mentioned as possible successor to Franz Von Papen as vice-chancellor, instead of Hermann Wilhelm Goering was chosen as spokesman for Nazi foreign policies also was commented upon as having possible internal political significance.

Trying to Apologize?

(A scheduled address by Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, which was to have been broadcast to the world at 3 p. m. today was cancelled by German officials, according to advices reaching New York. He will speak tomorrow night.)

The consensus among the chief foreign missions seemed to be that Hess in a way was trying to apologize for the actions of the propaganda ministry when it "suggested" to the entire German press to splurge in large headlines the details of an alleged plot between some of the Germans who were executed June 30, and France.

Another interpretation was that Foreign Minister Konstantin Von Neurath and General Joaquim Von Ribbentrop, the foreign ministry's envoy on disarmament, have been warning Hitler of an isolation in which Germany finds herself and told him that his expressed approval of the June 30 executions had fallen with somewhat unwelcome effect on foreign ears.

A third interpretation was that the Reichswehr (regular army) has left no doubt but that the belligerent attitude fostered by the storm troops must be considered a closed chapter.

Hitler in Seclusion

It was believed the necessity had been made plain of bending every effort toward reaching an understanding between France and Germany, especially in view of the conversations in London today between Barthou and British officials.

Chancellor Hitler was still in seclusion at his summer home near the Austrian border. All official activities have been sharply curtailed for a month during announced vacation period to be devoted astensibly to basic social reconstruction in Germany.

The Hess address, made to 12,000 Nazi chieftains at Koenigsberg yesterday, stressed the belief that a defenseless county endangers world peace and said that Germany would be satisfied with armaments sufficiently

Mississippi Votes Today On Dry Law

Jackson, Miss., July 9 (AP)—Mississippi will vote tomorrow whether to throw overboard its 25-year old dry statutes and legalize the sale of hard liquor.

If a majority vote against state-wide prohibition the May-Roberts act becomes immediately effective and the state liquor commission is to advertise at once for bids for wholesale shipments of liquor where a majority of Tuesday's voters favor sale of intoxicating beverages.

Rallies of dry leaders have been held throughout the state urging defeat of ratification but proponents of the bill have been doing no active campaigning. Senator W. B. Roberts, co-author of the act, has been issuing a series of statements urging ratification as a means of controlling the liquor traffic. Opponents have retaliated with statements declaring approval of the act means only the "wide open" sale of all liquor.

FARLEY PLANS WESTERN TRIP

Will Look Over Political Field and Visit New Postoffices

BY MELBOURNE CHRISTERSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Postmaster General Farley tonight replied to opposition criticism with the assertion that because Republicans have no economic issue they are seizing upon the "constitutional issue about which they can be as vague as they wish."

In a statement made on the eve of his departure for a western speaking trip, Farley said:

"The campaign is evidently definitely under way and I hope the opposition party has a good time even though its leaders have no more notion that Republican success is possible next November than I have."

Farley goes to Philadelphia tomorrow and will be in New York Wednesday. That night he will start westward, making his first stop at Indianapolis on Friday. All told, he will make more than a score of speeches, some of them at Democratic party rallies and others at dedications of new postoffices.

Predicts Senate Gain

He said the primary purpose of the trip was to attend the annual convention of the Postmasters' Association of California at San Jose on July 20. His stops enroute, however, will give him opportunity for many political conferences which will supply definite information on the soundness of the Democratic political fences.

"When I get back," he told reporters today, "I'll be able to tell you exactly how we stand and how we will fare in the fall elections."

He predicted a gain or five or six seats in the senate. He mentioned no figures for the house, but did say:

"We will be entirely satisfied as far as returns for the house are concerned."

Later in the summer Farley will make a second trip west to attend another postal convention in Denver. On that occasion he will swing south through Tennessee and also touch Iowa and the Dakotas before returning to Washington.

This time the postmaster general will make a stop at Albuquerque, New Mexico, and there will talk with leaders on the political situation in that state as it concerns Senator Cutting, Republican, who is up for re-election and who has supported the Roosevelt administration.

The administration definitely has lent support to California's Republican Hiram Johnson. Farley said today that while in California "I will say a few kind words for Hiram."

On neither trip will he visit Wisconsin. The Republican independent, Senator LaFollette, seeks re-election there. He has voted with the administration frequently and supported President Roosevelt in the presidential election.

Near-Beer Out, Chicago Rules

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—You may have to sneak up the alley if you want near-beer in Chicago.

A "near-beer-must-go" ordinance had the approval today of the city council's license committee.

The idea is that much near-beer sold here is far too near. In fact, said the councilmen, it's beer, but under the other name it can be sold without a license.

JURY DRAWN

Bay City, Mich., July 9, (AP)—A federal court jury has been drawn to hear the case of Frank Napieralski, of Alma, charged with using the mails to defraud by falsifying stock records in an insurance claim after fire had destroyed the building housing his bakery business in Alma.

NEW NATIONAL LABOR AGENCY GETS TO WORK

ACTION DESIRED ON MANY DISPUTES, STRIKES

Washington, July 9, (AP)—The new national labor relation board hung out the "open for business" sign today and immediately dug into a top-heavy pile of data on scores of disputes between employers and their workers.

Even before they took the oath of office, the three members of the board, headed by Lloyd Garrison young dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, were putting down on paper exactly how they would seek to spread industrial peace.

All three are known to feel that they must act quickly. Already there are about 100 strikes and other industrial disputes clamoring for attention. Some of these have been marked by violence and bloodshed.

Secretary Perkins welcomed Garrison and his collagues—Harry A. Millis and Edwin S. Smith and before noon had them started on their task. She has the firm conviction the new board will do much to help solve the problem of labor relations.

Separate Agency

The board, supplanting the old national labor board, was created as a separate agency adjoined to Miss Perkins' labor department. She said today:

"The organization of the labor relations board is a matter of extraordinary interest to this department. We will, of course, work cooperatively and put all of our facilities before them to aid in any task they may encounter."

The board's quarters are across the street from the labor department. Curiously, a series of strikes such as its members hope to settle has forced them into temporary quarters. Their permanent home, the new labor department building is several months behind schedule, and will not be open until fall.

Appearing early this morning one of the first things Garrison and his fellow members did was to telegraph the 19 regional labor boards to continue their work until further notice. They have been operating under the old labor board.

The new board is to be the overseer or a sort of supreme court for all labor boards and agencies.

BIZARRE CASE STILL MYSTERY

Body Identified, Police Certain Death Not By Hanging

Detroit, July 9 (AP) Police of Detroit, investigating the bizarre "hanging" death near Mt Clemens of Paul Ostin, a Detroit factory worker, turned to their fingerprint records today to make a positive identification of the victim who was found dead with a loose rope around his neck, and his body garbed in women's clothing.

The fingerprints, however, settled only the question of identification. The circumstances surrounding Ostin's death still remained to be solved.

Police checked the identification on the fingerprint record because Ostin was arrested here June 8 on a charge of stealing women's clothing off a clothesline.

The charge was dropped and police now would like to find the woman who caused his arrest, believing that she might help in identifying the clothing found on Ostin's body.

Efforts to get at the bottom of the weird case are held up pending the outcome of a post-morten examination which will be conducted at Mt. Clemens on Wednesday. The examination, it is hoped, will determine the cause of Ostin's death, since it was apparent to the authorities that the rope around his neck did not strangle Ostin as Macomb county authorities first believed.

Added to the strange case is that Ostin's identity was unknown until his automobile was found within 200 yards of the "hanging" scene a week after the body was found. Macomb county authorities declare the car was not there on June 28 when the body was discovered.

Ostin was married and the father of two children. He left home June 26 ostensibly to look for a job and his wife did not see him again until she identified the body exhumed from the Potter's field last Saturday.

Doomed Dillinger Aides Say They're Political Victims

Columbus, O., July 9, (AP)—In their death cells at Ohio penitentiary, Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, condemned Dillinger gangsters, "talked" today for the first time since they were sentenced to be electrocuted for the slaying of Sheriff Jess Sarber at Lima.

Pierpont, defiant and bitter, and Makley, calm and collected, declared "We did not do this job."

No Money From Dillinger

Asked if they had heard, directly or indirectly, from John Dillinger, the mob leader, they replied in the negative, Makley saying, "We have heard nothing from Dillinger since they kidnaped him out of Tucson, Ariz., jail and took him to Indiana."

The condemned men dismissed with laughs reports that Dillinger was robbing banks in the mid-west to obtain funds for their defense.

"They say Dillinger is sending me $15,000," Makley declared, adding, "I wish he would send me a few finns right now so I could buy cigarettes."

Both joined in this statement:

"The Indiana authorities, from the state house down, know who did that job, but they built up the case against us because we were 'hot.' They made a political issue of our case. Indiana authorities know who has been robbing banks while we were in jail at Michigan City."

Asked if Dillinger had engineered the Michigan City prison escape, when Pierpont, Makley and others got away, Pierpont replied:

"How could he have had when he was in jail at Dayton? The Indiana officials know who smuggled the guns into the prison and they know who got the money for doing it. They need some proof, but they know who engineered the job.

"They know, too, why Dillinger got loose from the escape-proof Crown Point, Indiana, jail with a wooden gun, just fifteen minutes before he was to make a deposition in our case. He was to tell who delivered him. I can tell you it was not us."

POSSES IN SEARCH

Fond Du Lac, Wis., July 9 (AP) Posses tonight toured eastern Fond Du Lac county where possible hideouts abound in search of gunmen, possibly led by John Dillinger, who today shot down an unidentified motorist, loaded his body into their own car and escaped a fusilade of lead from deputy sheriffs.

Two machine guns mounted in the battleship grey car which the gang used spat fire at the deputies during a running fight for several miles. The squad replied with pistols and a shotgun but was outdistanced.

Undersheriff Gilbert Booth and Traffic Officer Anton Raffenstein said, however, they were close enough to the fugitive car to see plainly the body of a man lying on the running board of the machine. Three men were in the car, they said.

The officers seized the ditched sedan in which the unknown victim was shot and which bore Indiana license plates issued to an Indianapolis paper company but reported stolen. Blood was on the front seat, three bullets were imbedded in the back, and the windows were broken.

Farmers said they were attracted by gunfire, saw the small car careen into the ditch with the gray car following, and occupants of the ambush automobile tied the body of their victim on their running board and drive away.

MOFFETT WILL CUT RED TAPE

Housing Administration Costs Will Be Kept To Minimum

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A regional organization reaching down into the very communities, but free from excessive overhead costs and tangles of red tape, is contemplated by James A. Moffett in spreading the benefits of the new housing act.

To bring this about, the new housing administrator plans to make use of the present setup of the national emergency council. This consists of the heads of the various governmental agencies connected with the recovery drive but has its offshoots and local committees all over the country.

Thus the energetic Moffett aims to put the work of spreading loans for home construction and repair upon a voluntary basis, with local committees kept advised of developments and ready to give advice to all who apply for it.

Ballyhoo Omitted

For his own organization in Washington, Moffett plans to appoint three deputy administrators. Each would have charge of one of the three principal phases of the work to be done—home renovation and modernization; new home construction and the refinancing of mortgages.

The law of which he is in charge would have the government guarantee 20 percent of the home building and repair loans advanced by banks, building and loan associations and other private financial enterprises.

In addition it calls for government insurance of first mortgages on new homes up to $16,000 and insurance of existing mortgages to a maximum of 70 p rcent of face value. This is designed to reach cases where the Home Owners' Loan corporation is unable to supply refinancing relief.

Moffett, hoping to get $500,000,000 to work by fall and provide new employment for 5,000,000 men, plans a campaign of steady pressure, but with slogans and ballyhoo conspicuously omitted.

One detail of this which he already has in mind is an effort to induce building supply companies, which would be among the first to benefit from a revival in construction, to call pointed attention in their own advertising to the credit advances which the home repairer or builder may obtain under the law.

Stratosphere Bag Gets Christened

Rapid City, S. D., July 9 (AP) Perfect weather conditions for the stratosphere flight were at least two days off today as the craft was christened.

Mrs. Tom Berry, first lady of South Dakota, christened the black and white gondola "The Explorer" with a bottle of liquid air before a selected crowd of scientists, army officers and state and civic officials in Moonlight Valley, scene of the ultimate takeoff for the 14 mile trip upward.

"I would like for each of you to feel that I am acting as your representative in this ceremony, whether you live east, south, north, or west of our beloved country," Mrs. Berry said.

Detroit, Mich., July 9, (AP)—Clarence Murray, 28, of Wyandotte, who police said apparently had lain down on the tracks of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad and gone to sleep, was fatally injured Monday when struck by a freight train.

JUDGE URGES DEBO TO SHOW PAROLE LISTS

SAYS MANY 'LIFERS' FREED THE PAST 18 MONTHS

Harrisville, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, the Iosco county jurist who imposed a double-edged prison term on John A. Woods to make certain that the slayer of four persons at East Tawas was not paroled 12 or 15 years after starting a life term, today challenged W. Alfred Debo, state commissioner of pardons and paroles, to make public a list of "lifers" who have been paroled in the past 18 months.

Judge Dehnke sentenced Woods to serve a life term and a 40 to 50 year term, the two running concurrently, and his observations at the time about the likelihood of parole for life terms prompted Debo to take issue with the jurist.

The latest exchange of opinions between the two men, Judge Dehnke told Debo today that "as a protection to the lives of others it was necessary to assure, if possible, that this particular offender (Woods) be confined permanently."

Liberal Policy Claim

In suggesting that Debo publish the list of paroled "lifers," the jurist said: "I think the public is entitled to this information which will furnish us with something definite and authentic, and automatically remove the discussion from the realm of conjecture and uncertainty."

Pointing out that widespread declarations indicated the state parole policy was more liberal in the past 18 months than previous to that time, Judge Dehnke said "x x x the conclusion is inescapable that one of two things must be true.

"Either the average time served before parole has been substantially reduced or the inmates of Michigan penal institutions and their relatives have suffered a cruel hoax by reason of false hopes so created.

"The present practice, which has in my experience become more acute during the last year and a half, gives the prisoner and his relatives and friends to understand that the officials concerned in the granting of paroles would be pleased to grant an immediate release but that they cannot do so except on recommendation of the judge.

"The result is that the latter finds himself besieged. x x x I would not object to such a course if, in the judgment of those granting the parole, it is safe for the prisoner to be released. I do this because I think it puts the responsibility where it belongs—upon prison officials and representatives of the commission, who are, or should be, in sufficiently intimate and frequent contact with the prisoner to enable them to form a reasonably accurate judgment on the issue.

"Knowing that they will be held responsible for the results, would impose some restraint against reckless or ill advised paroles.

"x x x Under the present practice if it turns out that a prisoner promptly returns to crime after having been paroled, the glib all it advanced to the public is 'the sentencing judge recommended his release.'"

$81,000 In Bills Hidden In House

Eau Claire, Wis., July 9 (AP) Eighty-one thousand dollars in old currency was found hidden in the home of Mrs. Alice Hayden who died last week, it was revealed today.

Mrs. Hayden was the widow of Henry R. Hayden, prominent local attorney and financier who died in 1903.

No one appeared to know why she kept such a fortune in her home.

Cleveland Tugmen Still Are On Strike

Cleveland, O., July 9 (AP) A report Cleveland tugmen had voted in favor of returning to work brought denials today from union leaders directing the strike which has handicapped lake shipping for more than one month.

Owen J. Kavanagh, grand president of the Tug Firemen and Linemen's Protective association at Buffalo said he attended a meeting of his union here aSturday and no vote had been taken.

Joseph J. Noonan, president of the tugmen, conferred with members of his union here Sunday and tonight was believed to be in Detroit.

FILM INDUSTRY SCRAPPED CODE

"Don't List" Forgotten In Manufacture of Movie Scenes

Hollywood, July 9 (AP) Had Hollywood fully adhered to its "don't list" adopted in 1930, there would be no troubled waters today.

Its code of morals, written after long and careful study, tells what should not be put in pictures. It declares the motion picture industry, realizing its large moral responsibilities, is fully aware entertainment can be of a harmful character. Hence this recognition in the code of the moral importance of entertainment.

"Scrap of Paper"

This code, which those who are fostering the campaigns for cleaner movies have called a "mere scrap of paper," covers a multitude of taboo subjects.

Had the code been followed by producers and scenario writers, is probable that the movies never would have had a gangster "cycle." The presentation of murder is often necessary to carry out a plot, but says the code, "frequent presentation of murder tends to lessen regard for the sacredness of life."

Continuing in this vein, there is the declaration that "criminals should not be made heroes, even if they are historical criminals." Methods of committing a crime should not be explicitly presented. That is, the film should not serve as a possible

GOPS MAP OUT FALL CAMPAIGN

BY ROBERT M. YODER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, July 9 (AP) The Republican general staff camped in Chicago today to scout the big fall battleground the midwest farming states.

Where to attack, when they tangle with the Democrats in November for a bigger share of the congressional seats, was the subject of the first of three days of conferences for which Henry P. Fletchers, new national chairman, had called in party followers.

Tomorrow, in a meeting with financially powerful Chicagoans, Fletcher will hunt cash backing for the party's fall campaign.

Congressman Chester C. Bolton of Cleveland, the party's political maestro in charge of re-electing incumbent congressmen, arrived full of cheerful predictions.

May Regain Ground

"We will gain between 50 and 75 seats in the November elections," the black haired Ohioan declared. "With less than that 31 would do we can achieve our big end, which will be to stop the passage of legislation by unconstitutional means, under suspension of the rules."

Fletcher said his month in office had given him much confidence. "I'd be expected to say this, anyway," he explained that the G. O. P. could regain much of the ground lost in the Roosevelt landslide of '32.

"My mail indicates," he said, "that the best issue will be bureaucracy. People seem to think that aside from our little setback the country has been getting along fairly well on the old lines."

Seven states seem most "hopeful" territory for Republican recovery, Bolton said, listing, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Washington among them. He predicted that Democrats would be unseated in "five or six" districts in New York and New England, but frowned as he came to Kansas and Missouri.

Gunmen Kill Two In Gary Barroom

Gary, Ind., July 9 (AP) Two men were shot and killed by gunmen in a barroom on the south side here today.

The victims were Nick Vujich, 45, bartender, and Iso Gabovich, 50, janitor.

Police expressed the belief the shooting resulted from a liquor war of prohibition days. Vujich, officers said, was formerly involved in the alcohol racket.

The bar in which the shooting occurred was owned by Mrs. Eva Kapaich. Joe Rollo, son-in-law of Mrs. Kapaich, was taken into custody for questioning concerning the shooting.

Death Takes Chief Of Pottawotomies

Battle Creek Mich. July 9 (AP) Death today carried to the "happy hunting ground" Sam Mandaka, 70, oracle of the Pottawotomies from the Indian reservation near Athens and the last member of the tribe referred to as "chief."

Mandoka died in Calhoun county hospital after an illness of five years. A world traveled American citizen with a flair for oratory, Mandoka was one of the first graduates of Haskell Indian school.

Six feet, two inches in height, he was an expert horseman and crack shot with either rifle or bow and arrow. At 66, he demonstrated to admiring Indian youngsters how to run river rapids standing up in a birch bark canoe.

OFFICER SAID TO HAVE MADE BID TO STACK

ATTORNEY GENERAL ASSISTANT DENIES GUILT

Lansing, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Turning on one of the men who brought it into being, the special grand jury investigating state affairs today returned an indictment against Assistant Attorney General M. Thomas Ward.

The indictment charged Ward with having offered a $2,500 bribe to Auditor General John K. Stack in an alleged attempt to induce the latter to cast his vote, as a member of the state administrative board's purchasing committee, in favor of diverting the bulk of the state's calcium chloride business to the Columbia Alkali company.

Ward was arrested as he left the capitol this afternoon. He was taken to the Lansing city jail, where he was forced to wait more than two hours for arraignment. He had little to say regarding the charge.

Pleads Not Guilty

He pleaded not guilty to charges of attempted bribery and was released on $2,000 bond.

"After I find out the details of the charges I will have a statement to make, but it will be in court where it will do the most good," he said.

Ward was one of the instigators of the inquiry, assisting Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien in drafting the petition which resulted in an order for the investigation by Judge Leland M. Carr. Ward has been active in inquiries conducted by the attorney general's office, and helped draw the charges under which Albert J. Tobin, Detroit lobbyist, and Rep. Tracy W. Southworth, of Monroe, were arrested recently for alleged conspiracy to "sell" trucking permits.

Auditor General Stack, commenting on Ward's arrest, asserted that in May, 1933, Ward entered his office and told him there "would be $2,500 apiece in it if 17,000 tons of calcium chloride could be purchased from a certain campany." Stack said Ward told him he represented the company.

According to Stack the purchasing committee and the state administrative board had agreed to divide the calcium chloride business between four companies, at a uniform price of $19.50 a ton. He declared he informed Ward he would have nothing to do with the proposed deal. Stack said no one else was present in his office when the proposition was made.

A Frankenstein Turn

Burnett J. Abbott, secretary of the state administrative board, revealed that the state bought more than 8500,000 worth of dust layer for the 1933 season. He said it was apportioned as follows: the Detroit Soda Products Co., Detroit, $139,358; the Solvay Process Co., Detroit, $140,251; the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, $131,196, and the Columbia Alkali Co., which he said is a subsidiary company of the

Amateur Radio Operator Saves Life Of Youth

Marquette, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Holger Johnson, who lives at Chippewa Harbor, Isle Royale, today is thanking amateur radio operators for saving the life of his nine-year-old son, Kenneth, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis in a Calumet hospital.

Kenneth became ill Sunday and it was apparent that he needed medical attention without delay. But Isle Royale is miles away from medical service and there are no means of communication except radio.

C. Codey, amateur radio operator at Chippewa Harbor, whose call letter is WSJJD, broadcast a message that Johnson was leaving for Houghton in a small boat with his son and asking that coast guards be sent out to meet them. Johnson's boat was slow and it was necessary that the boy reach a doctor as soon as possible.

The radio message from Isle Royale was picked up by W. R. Mellberg, W9OWN, Marquette amateur operator, and by Al Vezzini, 9ADY, of Calumet, who was in Marquette at that time. They telephoned the Eagle Harbor coast guard and the crew from the station put out for Isle Royale immediately. They met Johnson about half way and the boy was rushed to Calumet.

At the hospital it was found that his condition was extremely serious and the doctor who operated on him said that his appendix was ruptured and that he was brought to the hospital none too soon.

Washington, July 9 (AP)—Postmaster General Farley tonight replied to opposition criticism with the assertion that because Republicans have no economic issue they are seizing upon the "constitutional issue about which they can be as vague as they wish."

In a statement made on the eve of his departure for a western speaking trip, Farley said:

"The campaign is evidently definitely under way and I hope the opposition party has a good time even though its leaders have no more notion that Republican success is possible next November than I have."

Farley goes to Philadelphia tomorrow and will be in New York Wednesday. That night he will start westward, making his first stop at Indianapolis on Friday. All told, he will make more than a score of speeches, some of them at Democratic party rallies and others at dedications of new postoffices.

Predicts Senate Gain

He said the primary purpose of the trip was to attend the annual convention of the Postmasters' Association of California at San Jose on July 20. His stops enroute, however, will give him opportunity for many political conferences which will supply definite information on the soundness of the Democratic political fences.

"When I get back," he told reporters today, "I'll be able to tell you exactly how we stand and how we will fare in the fall elections."

He predicted a gain or five or six seats in the senate. He mentioned no figures for the house, but did say:

"We will be entirely satisfied as far as returns for the house are concerned."

Later in the summer Farley will make a second trip west to attend another postal convention in Denver. On that occasion he will swing south through Tennessee and also touch Iowa and the Dakotas before returning to Washington.

This time the postmaster general will make a stop at Albuquerque, New Mexico, and there will talk with leaders on the political situation in that state as it concerns Senator Cutting, Republican, who is up for re-election and who has supported the Roosevelt administration.

The administration definitely has lent support to California's Republican Hiram Johnson. Farley said today that while in California "I will say a few kind words for Hiram."

On neither trip will he visit Wisconsin. The Republican independent, Senator LaFollette, seeks re-election there. He has voted with the administration frequently and supported President Roosevelt in the presidential election.

Near-Beer Out, Chicago Rules

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—You may have to sneak up the alley if you want near-beer in Chicago.

A "near-beer-must-go!" ordinance had the approval today of the city council's license committee.

The idea is that much near-beer sold here is far too near. In fact, said the councilmen, it's beer, but under the other name it can be sold without a license.

JURY DRAWN

Bay City, Mich., July 9. (AP)—A federal court jury has been drawn to hear the case of Frank Napieralski, of Alma, charged with using the mails to defraud by falsifying stock records in an insurance claim after fire had destroyed the building housing his bakery business in Alma.

NEW NATIONAL LABOR AGENCY GETS TO WORK

ACTION DESIRED ON MANY DISPUTES, STRIKES

Washington, July 9. (AP)—The new national labor relation board hung out the "open for business" sign today and immediately dug into a top-heavy pile of data on scores of disputes between employers and their workers.

Even before they took the oath of office, the three members of the board, headed by Lloyd Garrison young dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, were putting down on paper exactly how they would seek to spread industrial peace.

All three are known to feel that they must act quickly. Already there are about 100 strikes and other industrial disputes clamoring for attention. Some of these have been marked by violence and bloodshed.

Secretary Perkins welcomed Garrison and his collagues—Harry A. Millis and Edwin S. Smith—and before noon had them started on their task. She has the firm conviction the new board will do much to help solve the problem of labor relations.

Separate Agency

The board, supplanting the old national labor board, was created as a separate agency adjoined to Miss Perkins' labor department. She said today:

"The organization of the labor relations board is a matter of extraordinary interest to this department. We will, of course, work cooperatively and put all of our facilities before them to aid in any task they may encounter."

The board's quarters are across the street from the labor department. Curiously, a series of strikes such as its members hope to settle has forced them into temporary quarters. Their permanent home, the new labor department building, is several months behind schedule, and will not be open until fall.

Appearing early this morning one of the first things Garrison and his fellow members did was to telegraph the 19 regional labor boards to continue their work until further notice. They have been operating under the old labor board.

The new board is to be the overseer or a sort of supreme court for all labor boards and agencies.

Body Identified, Police Certain Death Not By Hanging

Detroit, July 9 (AP)—Police of Detroit, investigating the bizarre "hanging" death near Mt. Clemens of Paul Ostin, a Detroit factory worker, turned to their fingerprint records today to make a positive identification of the victim who was found dead with a loose rope around his neck, and his body garbed in women's clothing.

The fingerprints, however, settled only the question of identification. The circumstances surrounding Ostin's death still remained to be solved.

Police checked the identification on the fingerprint record because Ostin was arrested here June 8 on a charge of stealing women's clothing off a clothesline.

The charge was dropped and police now would like to find the woman who caused his arrest, believing that she might help in identifying the clothing found on Ostin's body.

Efforts to get at the bottom of the weird case are held up pending the outcome of a post-morten examination which will be conducted at Mt. Clemens on Wednesday. The examination, it is hoped, will determine the cause of Ostin's death, since it was apparent to the authorities that the rope around his neck did not strangle Ostin as Macomb county authorities first believed.

Added to the strange case is that Ostin's identity was unknown until his automobile was found within 200 yards of the "hanging" scene a week after the body was found. Macomb county authorities declare the car was not there on June 28 when the body was discovered.

Ostin was married and the father of two children. He left home June 26 ostensibly to look for a job and his wife did not see him again until she identified the body exhumed from the Potter's field last Saturday.

Doomed Dillinger Aides Say They're Political Victims

Columbus, O., July 9. (AP)—In their death cells at Ohio penitentiary, Harry Pierpont and Charles Makley, condemned Dillinger gangsters, "talked" today for the first time since they were sentenced to be electrocuted for the slaying of Sheriff Jess Sarber at Lima.

Pierpont, defiant and bitter, and Makley, calm and collected, declared "We did not do this job."

No Money From Dillinger

Asked if they had heard, directly or indirectly, from John Dillinger, the mob leader, they replied in the negative, Makley saying, "We have heard nothing from Dillinger since they kidnaped him out of Tucson, Ariz., jail and took him to Indiana."

The condemned men dismissed with laughs reports that Dillinger was robbing banks in the mid-west to obtain funds for their defense.

"They say Dillinger is sending me $15,000," Makley declared, adding, "I wish he would send me a few finns right now so I could buy cigarettes."

Both joined in this statement:

"The Indiana authorities, from the state house down, know who did that job, but they built up the case against us because we were 'hot.' They made a political issue of our case. Indiana authorities know who has been robbing banks while we were in jail at Michigan City."

Asked if Dillinger had engineered the Michigan City prison escape, when Pierpont, Makley and others got away, Pierpont replied:

"How could he have had when he was in jail at Dayton? The Indiana officials know who smuggled the guns into the prison and they know who got the money for doing it. They need some proof, but they know who engineered the job.

"They know, too, why Dillinger got loose from the escape-proof Crown Point, Indiana, jail with a wooden gun, just fifteen minutes before he was to make a deposition in our case. He was to tell who delivered him. I can tell you it was not us."

POSSES IN SEARCH

Fond Du Lac, Wis., July 9. (AP)—Posses tonight toured eastern Fond Du Lac county where possible hideouts abound in search of gunmen, possibly led by John Dillinger, who today shot down an unidentified motorist, loaded his body into their own car and escaped a fusilade of lead from deputy sheriffs.

Two machine guns mounted in the battleship grey car which the gang used spat fire at the deputies during a running fight for several miles. The squad replied with pistols and a shotgun but was outdistanced.

Undersheriff Gilbert Booth and Traffic Officer Anton Raffenstein said, however, they were close enough to the fugitive car to see plainly the body of a man lying on the running board of the machine. Three men were in the car, they said.

The officers seized the ditched sedan in which the unknown victim was shot and which bore Indiana license plates issued to an Indianapolis paper company but reported stolen. Blood was on the front seat, three bullets were imbedded in the back, and the windows were broken.

Farmers said they were attracted by gunfire, saw the small car careen into the ditch with the gray car following, and occupants of the ambush automobile tied the body of their victim on their running board and drive away.

MOFFETT WILL CUT RED TAPE

Housing Administration Costs Will Be Kept To Minimum

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A regional organization reaching down into the very communities, but free from excessive overhead costs and tangles of red tape, is contemplated by James A. Moffett in spreading the benefits of the new housing act.

To bring this about, the new housing administrator plans to make use of the present setup of the national emergency council. This consists of the heads of the various governmental agencies connected with the recovery drive but has its offshoots and local committees all over the country.

Thus the energetic Moffett aims to put the work of spreading loans for home construction and repair upon a voluntary basis, with local committees kept advised of developments and ready to give advice to all who apply for it.

Ballyhoo Omitted

For his own organization in Washington, Moffett plans to appoint three deputy administrators. Each would have charge of one of the three principal phases of the work to be done—home renovation and modernization; new home construction and the refinancing of mortgages.

The law of which he is in charge would have the government guarantee 20 percent of the home building and repair loans advanced by banks, building and loan associations and other private financial enterprises.

In addition it calls for government insurance of first mortgages on new homes up to $16,000 and insurance of existing mortgages to a maximum of 70 percent of face value. This is designed to reach cases where the Home Owners' Loan corporation is unable to supply refinancing relief.

Moffett, hoping to get $500,000,000 to work by fall and provide new employment for 5,000,000 men, plans a campaign of steady pressure, but with slogans and ballyhoo conspicuously omitted.

One detail of this which he already has in mind is an effort to induce building supply companies, which would be among the first to benefit from a revival in construction, to call pointed attention in their own advertising to the credit advances which the home repairer or builder may obtain under the law.

Stratosphere Bag Gets Christened

Rapid City, S. D., July 9 (AP)—Perfect weather conditions for the stratosphere flight were at least two days off today as the craft was christened.

Mrs. Tom Berry, first lady of South Dakota, christened the black and white gondola "The Explorer" with a bottle of liquid air before a selected crowd of scientists, army officers and state and civic officials in Moonlight Valley, scene of the ultimate takeoff for the 15 mile trip upward.

"I would like for each of you to feel that I am acting as your representative in this ceremony, whether you live east, south, north, or west of our beloved country," Mrs. Berry said.

ASLEEP ON RAILS

Detroit, Mich., July 9. (AP)—Clarence Murray, 28, of Wyandotte, who police said apparently had lain down on the tracks of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad and gone to sleep, was fatally injured Monday when struck by a freight train.

FILM INDUSTRY SCRAPPED CODE

Hollywood, July 9 (AP)—Had Hollywood fully adhered to its "don't list" adopted in 1930, there would be no troubled waters today.

Its code of morals, written after long and careful study, tells what should not be put in pictures. It declares the motion picture industry, realizing its large moral responsibilities, is fully aware entertainment can be of a harmful character. Hence this recognition—in the code—of the moral importance of entertainment.

"Scrap of Paper"

This code, which those who are fostering the campaigns for cleaner movies have called a "mere scrap of paper," covers a multitude of taboo subjects.

Had the code been followed by producers and scenario writers, is probable that the movies never would have had a gangster "cycle." The presentation of murder is often necessary to carry out a plot, but says the code, "frequent presentation of murder tends to lesse: regard for the sacredness of life."

Continuing in this vein, there is the declaration that "criminals should not be made heroes, even if they are historical criminals." Methods of committing a crime should not be explicitly presented. That is, the film should not serve as a possible

SAYS MANY 'LIFERS' FREED THE PAST 18 MONTHS

Harrisville, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke, the Iosco county jurist who imposed a double-edged prison term on John A. Woods to make certain that the slayer of four persons at East Tawas was not paroled 12 or 15 years after starting a life term, today challenged W. Alfred Debo, state commissioner of pardons and paroles, to make public a list of "lifers" who have been paroled in the past 18 months.

Judge Dehnke sentenced Woods to serve a life term and a 40 to 50 year term, the two running concurrently, and his observations at the time about the likelihood of parole for life terms prompted Debo to take issue with the jurist.

The latest exchange of opinions between the two men, Judge Dehnke told Debo today that "as a protection to the lives of others it was necessary to assure, if possible, that this particular offender (Woods) be confined permanently."

Liberal Policy Claim

In suggesting that Debo publish the list of paroled "lifers," the jurist said: "I think the public is entitled to this information which will furnish us with something definite and authentic, and automatically remove the discussion from the realm of conjecture and uncertainty."

Pointing out that widespread declarations indicated the state parole policy was more liberal in the past 18 months than previous to that time, Judge Dehnke said "x x x the conclusion is inescapable that one of two things must be true:

"Either the average time served before parole has been substantially reduced or the inmates of Michigan penal institutions and their relatives have suffered a cruel hoax by reason of false hopes so created.

"The present practice, which has in my experience become more acute during the last year and a half, gives the prisoner and his relatives and friends to understand that the officials concerned in the granting of paroles would be pleased to grant an immediate release but that they cannot do so except on recommendation of the judge.

"The result is that the latter finds himself besieged. x x x I would not object to such a course if, in the judgment of those granting the parole, it is safe for the prisoner to be released. I do this because I think it puts the responsibility where it belongs—upon prison officials and representatives of the commission, who are, or should be, in sufficiently intimate and frequent contact with the prisoner to enable them to form a reasonably accurate judgment on the issue.

"Knowing that they will be held responsible for the results, would impose some restraint against reckless or ill-advised paroles.

"x x x Under the present practice if it turns out that a prisoner promptly returns to crime after having been paroled, the glib alibi advanced to the public is 'the sentencing judge recommended his release.'"

$81,000 In Bills Hidden In House

Eau Claire, Wis., July 9 (AP)—Eighty-one thousand dollars in old currency was found hidden in the home of Mrs. Alice Hayden who died last week, it was revealed today.

Mrs. Hayden was the widow of Henry R. Hayden, prominent local attorney and financier who died in 1903.

No one appeared to know why she kept such a fortune in her home.

Cleveland Tugmen Still Are On Strike

Cleveland, O., July 9 (AP)—A report Cleveland tugmen had voted in favor of returning to work brought denials today from union leaders directing the strike which has handicapped lake shipping for more than one month.

Owen J. Kavanagh, grand president of the Tug Firemen and Linemen's Protective association at Buffalo said he attended a meeting of his union here aSturday and no vote had been taken.

Joseph J. Noonan, president of the tugmen, conferred with members of his union here Sunday and tonight was believed to be in Detroit.

GOPS MAP OUT FALL CAMPAIGN

BY ROBERT M. YODER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, July 9 (AP)—The Republican general staff camped in Chicago today to scout the big fall battleground—the midwest farming states.

Where to attack, when they tangle with the Democrats in November for a bigger share of the congressional seats, was the subject of the first of three days of conferences for which Henry P. Fletchers, new national chairman, had called in party followers.

Tomorrow, in a meeting with financially powerful Chicagoans, Fletcher will hunt cash backing for the party's fall campaign.

Congressman Chester C. Bolton of Cleveland, the party's political maestro in charge of re-electing incumbent congressmen, arrived full of cheerful predictions.

May Regain Ground

"We will gain between 50 and 75 seats in the November elections," the black haired Ohioan declared. "With less than that—31 would do—we can achieve our big end, which will be to stop the passage of legislation by unconstitutional means, under suspension of the rules."

Fletcher said his month in office had given him much confidence—"I'd be expected to say this, anyway," he explained—that the G. O. P. could regain much of the ground lost in the Roosevelt landslide of '32.

"My mail indicates," he said, "that the best issue will be bureaucracy. People seem to think that—aside from our little setback—the country has been getting along fairly well on the old lines."

Seven states seem most "hopeful" territory for Republican recovery, Bolton said, listing, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, and Washington among them. He predicted that Democrats would be unseated in "five or six" districts in New York and New England, but frowned as he came to Kansas and Missouri.

Gunmen Kill Two In Gary Barroom

Gary, Ind., July 9 (AP)—Two men were shot and killed by gunmen in a barroom on the south side here today.

The victims were Nick Vujich, 45, bartender, and Iso Galovich, 50, janitor.

Police expressed the belief the shooting resulted from a liquor war of prohibition days. Vujich, officers said, was formerly involved in the alcohol racket.

The bar in which the shooting occurred was owned by Mrs. Eva Kapaich. Joe Rollo, son-in-law of Mrs. Kapaich, was taken into custody for questioning concerning the shooting.

Death Takes Chief Of Pottawotomies

Battle Creek, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Death today carried to the "happy hunting ground" Sam Mandaka, 70, oracle of the Pottawotomies from the Indian reservation near Athens and the last member of the tribe referred to as "chief."

Mandoka died in Calhoun county hospital after an illness of five years. A world-traveled American citizen with a flair for oratory, Mandoka was one of the first graduates of Haskell Indian school.

Six feet, two inches in height, he was an expert horseman and crack shot with either rifle or bow and arrow. At 60, he demonstrated to admiring Indian youngsters how to run river rapids standing up in a birch bark canoe.

OFFICER SAID TO HAVE MADE BID TO STACK

ATTORNEY GENERAL ASSISTANT DENIES GUILT

Lansing, Mich., July 9 (AP)—Turning on one of the men who brought it into being, the special grand jury investigating state affairs today returned an indictment against Assistant Attorney General M. Thomas Ward.

The indictment charged Ward with having offered a $2,500 bribe to Auditor General John K. Stack in an alleged attempt to induce the latter to cast his vote, as a member of the state administrative board's purchasing committee, in favor of diverting the bulk of the state's calcium chloride business to the Columbia Alkali company.

Ward was arrested as he left the capitol this afternoon. He was taken to the Lansing city jail, where he was forced to wait more than two hours for arraignment. He had little to say regarding the charge.

Pleads Not Guilty

He pleaded not guilty to charges of attempted bribery and was released on $2,000 bond.

"After I find out the details of the charges I will have a statement to make, but it will be in court where it will do the most good," he said.

Ward was one of the instigators of the inquiry, assisting Attorney General Patrick H. O'Brien in drafting the petition which resulted in an order for the investigation by Judge Leland M. Carr. Ward has been active in inquiries conducted by the attorney general's office, and helped draw the charges under which Albert J. Tobin, Detroit lobbyist, and Rep. Tracy W. Southworth, of Monroe, were arrested recently for alleged conspiracy to "sell" trucking permits.

Auditor General Stack, commenting on Ward's arrest, asserted that in May, 1933, Ward entered his office and told him there "would be $2,500 apiece in it if 17,000 tons of calcium chloride could be purchased from a certain campany." Stack said Ward told him he represented the company.

According to Stack the purchasing committee and the state administrative board had agreed to divide the calcium chloride business between four companies, at a uniform price of $19.50 a ton. He declared he informed Ward he would have nothing to do with the proposed deal. Stack said no one else was present in his office when the proposition was made.

A Frankenstein Turn

Burnett J. Abbott, secretary of the state administrative board, revealed that the state bought more than $500,000 worth of dust layer for the 1933 season. He said it was apportioned as follows: the Detroit Soda Products Co., Detroit, $139,358; the Solvay Process Co., Detroit, $140,351; the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, $131,196, and the Columbia Alkali Co., which he said is a subsidiary company of the

Amateur Radio Operator Saves Life Of Youth

Marquette, Mich., July 9. (AP)—Holger Johnson, who lives at Chippewa Harbor, Isle Royale, today is thanking amateur radio operators for saving the life of his nine-year-old son, Kenneth, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis in a Calumet hospital.

Kenneth became ill Sunday and it was apparent that he needed medical attention without delay. But Isle Royale is miles away from medical service and there are no means of communication—except radio.

C. Codey, amateur radio operator at Chippewa Harbor, whose call letter is WSJJD, broadcast a message that Johnson was leaving for Houghton in a small boat with his son and asking that coast guards be sent out to meet them. Johnson's boat was slow and it was necessary that the boy reach a doctor as soon as possible.

The radio message from Isle Royale was picked up by W. R. Mellberg, W9OWN, Marquette amateur operator, and by Al Vezzini, 9ADY, of Calumet, who was in Marquette at that time. They telephoned the Eagle Harbor coast guard and the crew from the station put out for Isle Royale immediately. They met Johnson about half way and the boy was rushed to Calumet.

At the hospital it was found that his condition was extremely serious and the doctor who operated on him said that his appendix was ruptured and that he was brought to the hospital none too soon.

LONG GETS TAX ON ADVERTISING

Huey Forces Bill By House in Louisiana, "Levy on Lies"

BY JACK ADAMS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Baton Rouge, July 9 (AP)—Striding up and down the aisles shouting "Vote yes!" United States Senator Huey Long today whipped through the house a bill to tax newspaper advertising two percent and placing similar levies on the gross receipts of public utilities and two cents a $100 on future sales on the cotton exchange.

The measures were first advanced by Long four years ago and although opponents charged the advertising tax was Long's method of hitting back at opposition newspapers the senator forced the bills, estimated to bring in revenues of $3,000,000 a year, through the house.

"Two Cents Per Lie"

A satisfied smile was Senator Long's only reply to the shouted charges of his opposition that the newspaper tax was aimed at free speech and was shaped as reprisal against the Louisiana dailies that have bitterly criticized his five-year political dictatorship.

Last night Senator Long flooded the state with handbills announcing that he had put over a bill to tax the newspapers "two cents per lie."

The handbill urging elimination of the $1 poll taxes, a requirement for voting, said newspapers are continuing a "vicious campaign against giving the people a free right to vote."

"Up to this time," it went on, "they have never paid any license to do business like everybody else does. It is a system that these big Louisiana newspapers tell a lie every time they make a dollar. This tax should be called a tax on lying, two cents per lie."

The newspaper tax bill was first written to apply only to about four of the larger state dailies. Senator Long amended it in senate committee to make it reach all dailies and weeklies having circulation of 20,000 a week. Concurrence in this amendment was voted by the house today, 76 to 28.

In Canada at the close of 1933, there were 165 private air pilots, 174 commercial pilots, 102 air engineers, 19 private planes, 296 commercial planes, and 105 registered airports.

Thus it was necessary today to decide precisely the relationship between the main board and the subsidiaries. Another question was whether all regional boards should be retained, abolished or reestablished with new authority.

WHINE OF BULLETS

San Francisco, July 9. (AP)—Only a few blocks from San Francisco's tension bound waterfront, which a few hours previously witnessed the first whine of national guard bullets answering shots from a mysterious automobile, President Roosevelt's labor disputes board began sitting today as a court of inquiry into the crucial strike of 27,000 Pacific coast longshoremen and marine workers.

Threats of expansion of the strike into a general walkout here and at other ports continued as the government agency began exercising its authority under a new congressional enactment.

Stories of frustation and abuse were related by representatives of the striking unions testifying informally before the federal board, composed of Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, and Oscar K. Cushing, an attorney.

A charge that ship owners had taken advantage of the NRA to deal with the International Seamen's Union was made by Paul Scharrenberg, representing that craft. He asserted the shippers had organized to obtain benefits under the national recovery act but had declined to deal collectively with the striking seamen.

5 Itinerants Die In Track Accident

La Vergne, Tenn., July 9 (AP)—One white man and four negro itinerants were crushed to death today when a Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway freight train was derailed and 20 cars overturned. A number of others were injured.

First reports were that eight were killed, but only five bodies had been found tonight. The white man killed was identified as James Stoddard of Indianapolis, Ind. He was reported on his way to Palm Beach, Fla.

The freight was enroute from Nashville to Chattanooga and its derailment delayed two crack passenger trains. The Dixie Flyer, from Jacksonville to Chicago, was caught on one side of the wreck and The Lookout, from Nashville and New York, on the opposite side.

U. P. WELFARE REPORT ISSUED

But Washington Officials Say Lansing Will Announce It

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., July 9. The report of John H. Millar, assistant on special projects, on rehabilitation measures that FERA will undertake or collaborate with state agencies in administering in the upper peninsula will be made public at Lansing, Michigan, when local officials of FERA there are in a position to follow up acceptable recommendations of the survey.

Mr. Millar, who several weeks ago made a three-day tour through the nine counties of the western part of the peninsula, with the exception of Menominee county, declined to comment here today on the nature of his report which was prepared as a result of his survey. Mr. Millar was accompanied on his visit through the western counties of the peninsula by F. S. Benjamin, relief work engineer for the western part of upper Michigan, and John French, rehabilitation director for the Iron county emergency welfare relief commission.

"Of course, a copy of my report surveying economic and social conditions in the upper peninsula has been placed in the hands of Administrator Harry Hopkins, FERA head here at Washington. There will be no announcements from his office or my headquarters here, however, in anticipation of any of the findings or recommendations resulting from the survey that may be announced at the Michigan state capital," Mr. Millar declared.

The report is now in the hands of Dr. William Haber, FERA director of the state emergency welfare relief commission at Lansing. Announcements concerning the findings and suggestions made by Mr. Millar will come from his office. Howard Hunter, a regional field representative who has been working in Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan, also is expected to participate in any announcements Mr. Hunter is at present in Chicago, but is expected to confer at some length with Dr. Haber on upper peninsula conditions before any announcement is made.

Mr. Miller today declined to comment on the probable date of making public the findings or recommendations of his survey.

HABER OUTLINES PLAN

Marquette, Mich. The CWA or similar employment program will quite definitely not be returned in the fall, Dr. William Haber, state relief administrator, said Saturday at a meeting of upper peninsula welfare administrators held at the Hotel Northland. Instead, he indicated, the present setup of work relief on a budgetary basis will be continued with a possible further restriction of state and federal funds.

The administrator discussed tentative plans for the new work relief program which will be launched in the United States beginning September 15. He said he understood that stipulated amounts would be given for each kind of relief work and that the system would be considerably altered. Definite information concerning the new plan, he said, would be announced in the near future.

Two Factors

Dr. Haber stressed two factors which, he said, must be considered in any relief program for the upper peninsula. The first is a change to long term planning, he declared.

"It is foolish," he asserted, "to talk of an emergency program for this district. It simply means a postponement of the day of reckoning. The district has less recuperative powers than any other in the state.

Instead we must talk in terms of a long term plan. It is a problem which cannot be worked out by the state or federal governments, but which must be solved by local officials and relief commissions. To it must be enlisted all the genius of the district.

"I am particularly interested," Dr. Haber continued, "in the problem of the young men in the district. We have authorized our upper peninsula representatives, Walter M. Berry and F. S. Benjamin, to submit a workable project for them. It probably will take the form of a conservation corps of camps combining support activities with recreational and educational activities.

Local Funds Needed

A second factor necessary to the contribution of local funds to the program. Twenty-seven counties in the state are now providing one-third or more of the relief costs while a large number of others are making considerable donations to the work. Upper peninsula shares are rather small.

"We can say, however, that when fall comes every able bodied person on relief will be given work opportunities on a budgetary basis. In this phase the upper peninsula is ahead of the rest of the state and from 70 to 90 per cent of the persons in the district are now at work for their allotments. The state average is only about 50 per cent."

Traffic Situation In Detroit Serious

Detroit, July 9. (AP) Challenged by a traffic death toll of 215 dead since Jan. 1, police began a drive tonight against the reign which death has held over Detroit streets, doubling the personnel of the motor vehicle division and announcing the 15 and 20-mile speed limits will be rigidly enforced on all streets except stop thoroughfares.

The number who have died in traffic accidents since the first of the year is the highest on this date in Detroit history. In addition, 6,684 persons have been injured in 5,504 automobile accidents and 131 have been hurt in miscellaneous crashes.

The number of men on the motor vehicle division, 138, will be doubled by taking officers from all precinct stations in a fight against the death toll which Police Commissioner Heinrich Pickert termed an "emergency."

Accurate Data On Copper Is Desired

New York, July 9 (AP) In an effort to obtain more accurate statistics on the actual amount of copper of all kinds in the hands of fabricators and consumers, H. O. King, managing director of the copper code authority, today sent out a general questionnaire to all consuming mills and other users of the red metal.

"The effective date of the copper code as regards sales quotas and buying agreements was March 22, 1934," a letter attached to the questionnaire states. "If all consumers of copper will furnish information requested we will be able to obtain a true picture of the condition of copper stocks at the beginning of the code."

Two others have been indicted by the jury, but both were arrested on perjury charges. Ward is the first to be confronted with a direct allegation of attempted bribery.

He was reinstated to practice law in Michigan by the supreme court January 6, 1933, having been disbarred in Grand Rapids in May, 1931, for three years. Almost immediately after being reinstated he became an assistant attorney general.

The only witness at the jury session at Mason today was Robert R. Pointer, farmer, of West Branch, who was candidate of the People's Progressive party for president of the United States in 1924, and candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in 1928. Pointer said he had "plenty to tell the jury." He was closeted with that body about an hour. He said he had been doing some "personal investigating" of conditions in the state.

MORALS TRIAL PACKS COURT

Questions of Intimate Nature Will Be Asked

Los Angeles, July 9 (AP) Issues in the morals trial of David Allen and Gloria Marsh, Hollywood figures, came into the open today during the examination of prospective jurors before a courtroom jammed with spectators, mostly women.

Jerry Geisler, attorney for Allen, informed the seven women and five men tentatively in the jury box that he might be compelled to ask witness some questions "of an extremely intimate nature." He asked the talesmen if they were connected in any way with the current campaign for cleaner movies.

Allen is a former manager of the Central Casting Bureau, Hollywood agency through which thousands of extras are cast for the various film studios. Miss Marsh is a film extra.

May Bar Public

More than 200 persons crowded Judge B. Rey Schauer's court room to capacity as the trial opened. Several hundred others, denied admission, crowded and pushed against barricades erected by deputy sheriffs outside the courtroom.

Because of the sensational testimony given before the grand jury by June De Long, extra girl, whose disclosures brought about the indictments, it was considered possible that the public would be barred from the courtroom when the taking of testimony started.

Arthur Vettch, deputy district attorney, indicated that prosecution would demand to know all the inner workings of the casting corporation which employed Allen.

Miss De Long told the grand jury of an allegedly "wild party" that occurred in her apartment April 24. She said Allen forced her to "arrange" this and other parties before he would consider her requests for employment in the movies. The casting corporation is the clearing house for thousands of women extra players.

CCC Recruits Are Held for Slaying Camp Commander

Poteau, Okla., July 9 (AP) Four CCC recruits were in custody of county authorities tonight in connection with the slaying of Lieut. Jabez L. Gatlin, of Mexia, Tex., youthful commanding officer of the Pine Valley civilian conservation corps camp.

Though no formal charges had been brought police said they were informed by eyewitnesses that Wallace McCullough of Sallisaw, Okla., fired the fatal shot. Others held were James and Moochie Baldridge and Mark Ruark.

The slaying occurred last midnight when the 20-year old commanding officer attempted to quiet his charges after they had been reported for drinking.

McCullough was said to have turned upon Gatlin following the latter's command that the quartet go to bed. Before he fell, shot through the left eye, Gatlin returned the fire, but without effect.

Monday Selected To Elect Leader For Tammany Hall

New York, July 9 (AP) Tammany Hall's district leaders torn by internal strife and bereft of federal patronage today fixed Monday, July 16, for an executive committee meeting to elect a leader to succeed the deposed John F. Curry.

Still unable to drive a compromise between the three strong candidates James J. Dooling, Stephen Ruddy and Edward J. Ahearn, the Wigwam's chieftains nevertheless decided to go ahead with the election.

The decision was prompted, some leaders said, by the report that the national administration was prepared to withhold almost half a billion dollars in housing and other patronage until a "satisfactory" leader is chosen.

Fruit and Vegetable Industry Gets Code

Washington, July 9 (AP) President Roosevelt's approval of a code for the $2,000,000,000 wholesale fresh fruit and vegetable distributing industry was announced today by NRA.

The code, which becomes effective July 16, comes under the jurisdiction of both Hugh S. Johnson and Secretary Wallace. The president's order of approval provides "That the continued participation of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers association, the Western Fruit Jobbers' Association of America, the International Apple association and the National League of Commission Merchants of the United States shall be contingent upon the amendment of their by-laws to the satisfaction of the secretary of agriculture and the administrator for national recovery."

DROP SENTENCE ON MACCRACKEN

Senate Overstepped Its Authority, Asserts Appeals Court

BY SAM BLEDSOE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, July 9 (AP)—A court's majority opinion today wiped out for the time being the ten-day jail sentence imposed on William P. MacCracken, Jr., by the senate, but apparently the case was headed to the supreme court for the final word on the right of congress to punish those who defy it.

Mac Cracken, former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, was tried by the senate and given the jail term last February after his refusal to deliver papers subpoenaed by the senate committee investigating air mail.

L. H. Brittin, former official of Northwest Airways, Inc., was also sentenced to ten days in jail. He served without an appeal.

Overstepped Its Right

Two other airline officials, Harris M. Hanshue and Gilbert L. Givvin, were tried by the senate and acquitted.

The affair was a phase of the inquiry which resulted in the cancellation of airmail contracts.

This was the contention by Frank Hogan, MacCracken's attorney, who said his client had purged himself of the charge against him by delivering the papers sought but that in any event the senate lacked power to punish him because the offense was over and done with before the legislative body brought MacCracken before it.

The decision today said the senate should have cited the former government official to the courts for punishment and that there were statutes on the books which laid down the procedure for such action. It added:

"Unless there is to be an intermingling of the legislative and judicial power to deal with contempt, thereby rendering it possible in all cases as a matter of legislative power summarily to try one thus accused without subjecting him to the statutory modes of trial provided for criminal offenses, protected by the limitations and safeguards of the constitution, then we must and do declare that the senate is without jurisdiction to inflict this punishment on the petitioner."

The court, however, agreed that both the senate and house have the constitutional power to punish anyone obstructing legislative processes, but the ruling was that this power ceased if the offense is not a continuing one.

LONG GETS TAX ON ADVERTISING

Huey Forces Bill By House in Louisiana, "Levy on Lies"

BY JACK ADAMS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Baton Rouge, July 9 (AP)—Striding up and down the aisles shouting "Vote yes!" United States Senator Huey Long today whipped through the house a bill to tax newspaper advertising two percent and placing similar levies on the gross receipts of public utilities and two cents a $100 on future sales on the cotton exchange.

The measures were first advanced by Long four years ago and although opponents charged the advertising tax was Long's method of hitting back at opposition newspapers the senator forced the bills, estimated to bring in revenues of $3,000,000 a year, through the house.

"Two Cents Per Lie"

A satisfied smile was Senator Long's only reply to the shouted charges of his opposition that the newspaper tax was aimed at free speech and was shaped as reprisal against the Louisiana dailies that have bitterly criticized his five-year political dictatorship.

Last night Senator Long flooded the state with handbills announcing that he had put over a bill to tax the newspapers "two cents per lie."

The handbill urging elimination of the $1 poll taxes, a requirement for voting, said newspapers are continuing a "vicious campaign against giving the people a free right to vote."

"Up to this time," it went on, "they have never paid any license to do business like everybody else does. It is a system that these big Louisiana newspapers tell a lie every time they make a dollar. This tax should be called a tax on lying, two cents per lie."

The newspaper tax bill was first written to apply only to about four of the larger state dailies. Senator Long amended it in senate committee to make it reach all dailies and weeklies having circulation of 20,000 a week. Concurrence in this amendment was voted by the house today, 56 to 38.

Thus it was necessary today to decide precisely the relationship between the main board and the subsidiaries. Another question was whether all regional boards should be retained, abolished or reestablished with new authority.

WHINE OF BULLETS

San Francisco, July 9. (AP)—Only a few blocks from San Francisco's tension bound waterfront, which a few hours previously witnessed the first whine of national guard bullets answering shots from a mysterious automobile, President Roosevelt's labor disputes board began sitting today as a court of inquiry into the crucial strike of 27,000 Pacific coast longshoremen and marine workers.

Threats of expansion of the strike into a general walkout here and at other ports continued as the government agency began exercising its authority under a new congressional enactment.

Stories of frustation and abuse were related by representatives of the striking unions testifying informally before the federal board, composed of Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, and Oscar K. Cushing, an attorney.

A charge that ship owners had taken advantage of the NRA to deal with the International Seamen's Union was made by Paul Scharrenberg, representing that craft. He asserted the shippers had organized to obtain benefits under the national recovery act but had declined to deal collectively with the striking seamen.

5 Itinerants Die In Track Accident

La Vergne, Tenn., July 9 (AP)—One white man and four negro itinerants were crushed to death today when a Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway freight train was derailed and 20 cars overturned. A number of others were injured.

First reports were that eight were killed, but only five bodies had been found tonight. The white man killed was identified as James Stoddard of Indianapolis, Ind. He was reported on his way to Palm Beach, Fla.

The freight was enroute from Nashville to Chattanooga and its derailment delayed two crack passenger trains. The Dixie flyer, from Jacksonville to Chicago, was caught on one side of the wreck and The Lookout, from Nashville and New York, on the opposite side.

U. P. WELFARE REPORT ISSUED

But Washington Officials Say Lansing Will Announce It

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., July 9.—The report of John H. Millar, assistant on special projects, on rehabilitation measures that FERA will undertake or collaborate with state agencies in administering in the upper peninsula will be made public at Lansing, Michigan, when local officials of FERA there are in a position to follow up acceptable recommendations of the survey.

Mr. Millar, who several weeks ago made a three-day tour through the nine counties of the western part of the peninsula, with the exception of Menominee county, declined to comment here today on the nature of his report which was prepared as a result of his survey. Mr. Millar was accompanied on his visit through the western counties of the peninsula by F. S. Benjamin, relief work engineer for the western part of upper Michigan, and John French, rehabilitation director for the Iron county emergency welfare relief commission.

"Of course, a copy of my report surveying economic and social conditions in the upper peninsula has been placed in the hands of Administrator Harry Hopkins, FERA head here at Washington. There will be no announcements from his office or my headquarters here, however, in anticipation of any of the findings or recommendations resulting from the survey that may be announced at the Michigan state capital," Mr. Millar declared.

The report is now in the hands of Dr. William Haber, FERA director of the state emergency welfare relief commission at Lansing. Announcements concerning the findings and suggestions made by Mr. Millar will come from his office. Howard Hunter, a regional field representative who has been working in Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan, also is expected to participate in any announcements. Mr. Hunter is at present in Chicago, but is expected to confer at some length with Dr. Haber on upper peninsula conditions before any announcement is made.

Mr. Miller today declined to comment on the probable date of making public the findings or recommendations of his survey.

HABER OUTLINES PLAN

Marquette, Mich.—The CWA or similar employment program will quite definitely not be returned in the fall, Dr. William Haber, state relief administrator, said Saturday at a meeting of upper peninsula welfare administrators held at the Hotel Northland. Instead, he indicated, the present setup of work relief on a budgetary basis will be continued with a possible further restriction of state and federal funds.

The administrator discussed tentative plans for the new work relief program which will be launched in the United States beginning September 15. He said he understood that stipulated amounts would be given for each kind of relief work and that the system would be considerably altered. Definite information concerning the new plan, he said, would be announced in the near future.

Two Factors

Dr. Haber stressed two factors, which, he said, must be considered in any relief program for the upper peninsula. The first is a change to long-term planning, he declared.

"It is foolish," he asserted, "to talk of an emergency program for this district. It simply means a postponement of the day of reckoning. The district has less recuperative powers than any other in the state.

Instead we must talk in terms of a long-term plan. It is a problem which cannot be worked out by the state or federal governments, but which must be solved by local officials and relief commissions. To it must be enlisted all the genius of the district.

"I am particularly interested," Dr. Haber continued, "in the problem of the young men in the district. We have authorized our two upper peninsula representatives, Walter M. Berry and F. S. Benjamin, to submit a workable project for them. It probably will take the form of a camp or a series of camps, combining opportunities with recreational and educational activities.

Local Funds Needed

"A second factor must be the contribution of local funds to the program. Twenty-seven counties in the state are now providing one-third or more of the relief costs while a large number of others are making considerable donations to the work. Upper peninsula shares are rather small.

"We can say, however, that when fall comes every able-bodied person on relief will be given work opportunities on a budgetary basis. In this phase the upper peninsula is ahead of the rest of the state and from 70 to 90 per cent of the persons in the district are now at work for their allotments. The state average is only about 30 per cent."

Traffic Situation In Detroit Serious

Detroit, July 9. The number who have died in traffic accidents since the first of the year is the highest on this date in Detroit history. In addition, 6,684 persons have been injured in 5,504 automobile accidents and 131 have been hurt in miscellaneous crashes.

The number of men on the motor vehicle division, 138, will be doubled by taking officers from all precinct stations in a fight against the death toll which Police Commissioner Heinrick Pickert termed an "emergency."

TO RELOCATE RURAL ROUTE

Mail Will Be Delivered to Families Along Highway US-41

Authorization was received yesterday from Washington to relocate the Ford River Switch-Escanaba portion of Escanaba rural free delivery route No. 1 from the old State Road to Highway US-41, Postmaster Regina Cleary announces. The change will go into effect August 1.

The relocation will mean that about sixty families, who have settled in recent years along the paved highway, will be able to get their mail delivered to their homes, instead of having to call at the general delivery window at the Escanaba postoffice. These persons will have until the first of the month to install mailboxes.

The Escanaba rural route is now 33.825 miles in length, and will be increased one mile by the relocation.

Airplanes which spread poisonous sodium arsenite dust in front of the advancing insects are being used to rid Africa of the swarm of locusts which are destroying the crops.

The red wood used in pencils, fence posts, and cedar chests is not cedar, but juniper. The cedar is an Old World tree.

AT THE DELFT

The wicked eighties and the gay nineties may have been just that, but Time is a jokester and in this year 1933 A. D., the days of Chuck Connors, Steve Brodie, John L. Sullivan and Carrie Nation, with their honky tonks, their spectacular bridge jumps, their bare-knuckled fights and their saloon wrecking, are richly, deliciously and frequently riotously funny.

At least, audiences at the Delft theatre where it is showing for the last times, today, are finding "The Bowery," the feature with which the new 20th Century Pictures launches its production program for United Artists release, good for deep-hearted laughter from the moment Chuck Connors enters the scene and gets mad because his rival Steve Brodie, has thrown rotton "mushmelons" all over the front of his saloon, to the final fade-out when Chuck and Steve, friends at last, march away to put a speedy end to the Spanish-American War.

Wallace Beery and George Raft play Connors and Brodie respectively, and Jackie Cooper, completing the star triumvirate, is Swipes, a newsie who lives with Chuck until Chuck brings home a girl he rescued from some white slavers. Swipes doesn't hold with women and with being neat and tidy, and when Church gives him a sound warming on the spot intended for spankings, Swipes leaves home covered with chagrin.

How New Tire SENSATION smashes DEPRESSION BARRIERS!

Tremendous welcome of new "G-3" — marvel tire that gives 43% more non-skid mileage — keeps Goodyear factories and dealers on jump!

Warning! Look at the NON-SKID in the center of this tread—the spot that counts, because that's where the tread contacts the ground. When it comes to safety, insurance figures show that 5½ times as many accidents are due to skidding as to blowouts and punctures combined. Remember this when others try to duplicate what the "G-3" gives you: You have to have "NON-SKID" before any tire can give you "NON-SKID MILEAGE" and safety—and you have to have Goodyear Supertwist beneath this type of tread to make it a real success.

A 1934 success story that shows how the American people will buy when you build what they want

LANK and angular he stood there—one of the nation's greatest research engineers. Conviction shone in his eyes as he spoke these words:

"If it were up to me to whip depression, I'd put a big billboard in front of every factory in the land, with this burning message: 'GIVE US SOMETHING NEW AND GOOD AND WE WILL BUY IT'—signed 'THE AMERICAN PUBLIC'."

There is more than psychology in that statement—there is truth—and here's the finest evidence in the world—the evidence of sales.

How a tire started a stampede

Ten weeks ago people opened their morning papers and read the story of a new tire—a spectacular tire—known by the factory job number "G-3".

Eagerly eyes ran through the facts—for here was something the people wanted—a tire proved by grueling days and nights on the test fleet—a tire with 43% longer non-skid mileage than the former All-Weather—a tire that kept its grip twice as long as other tires tested against it.

Then things happened! By the thousands and tens of thousands car owners headed for Goodyear dealers. All over the country they demanded the new "G-3".

This is no exaggeration. You should see the reports that rolled into headquarters at Akron. Excited dealers wrote, wired, called in by phone.

"We're breaking sales records!" "We're swamped with business!" We're having the biggest sales in history!" "We're selling whole sets of the new "G-3"." "Sold 37 tires"—"sold 50 tires"—"sold 200 tires the first day," ran the figures from all over the country.

All over the country... car owners headed for Goodyear dealers

The non-skid stayed on these "G-3's" longer than any tire I ever used. H. S. H., Ft. Myers, Fla.

I have received 50% more non-skid from these "G-3's" than I ever got before. H. T. H., Adena, O.

These tires have run 21,000 miles . . . the non-skid still appears on the tread. R. H., Orlando, Fla.

The "G-3" is the answer to the motorist's prayer. W. D. W., Salisbury, Pa.

The other day I saved myself from a serious accident because of the wonderful grip on your new "G-3". O. G., Portland, Ore.

After 15,000 miles of hard use, much of it at high speed, these "G-3" tires have plenty of tread left. S.O.S., Portland, Ore.

I have received more than double the mileage . . . and the diamond tread is still showing. A. G. R., Clarksburg, W. Va.

. . . these "G-3" tires have delivered the best non-skid mileage that I have ever obtained. E. M. W., Hartford, Conn.

After 15,000 miles the tread on these "G-3" tires looks almost like new. Any previous tires were smooth or went out of service before 15,000 miles. J. P. S., Portsmouth, O.

What you get in the "G-3" All-Weather

Such instantaneous success sprang from this vital fact—Goodyear actually had a wonder tire—had actually spent close to two years developing, testing, perfecting it.

And here's what this great new "G-3" gives you:

A tread with the extra-durability and extra-resilience of patented Goodyear Supertwist beneath it to stand up under the extra weight and strain—

A tread that gives 43% more miles of real non-skid safety at no extra cost!

Any wonder this "G-3" is a sensation! Any wonder more people are buying the new "G-3" than any other tire in the world!

I have received more than double the mileage . . . and the diamond tread is still showing. A. G. R., Clarksburg, W. Va.

After 15,000 miles the tread on these "G-3" tires looks almost like new. Any previous tires were smooth or went out of service before 15,000 miles. J. P. S., Portsmouth, O.

from this vital fact—Goodyear actually had a wonder tire—had actually spent close to two years developing, testing, perfecting it.

And here's what this great new "G-3" gives you:

A tread with the extra-durability and extra-resilience of patented Goodyear Supertwist beneath it to stand up under the extra weight and strain—

A tread that gives 43% more miles of real non-skid safety at no extra cost!

Any wonder this "G-3" is a sensation! Any wonder more people are buying the new "G-3" than any other tire in the world!

What you get in the "G-3" All-Weather

NO SURVEY YET

IT IS several weeks since Delta county petitioned the state administrative board for an appropriation for a land economic survey, but no word has been forthcoming from that body to indicate that the necessary funds will be provided.

Most of the work on such a survey must be done before winter, and it is quite important that the project be started at once in order to secure completion this year.

During the last few years much money has been expended on work relief projects to meet the emergency of dire unemployment. Much of the work was not of a substantial nature, but was designed hurriedly in order to give the impression that the unemployed were laboring for their groceries and other necessities.

As yet, nothing has been done to any great extent in the matter of long term planning. The land economic survey would supply Delta county with concrete information concerning the various types of soil, lakes, streams and timber on its vast acreage. It would determine the proper use to which lands should be put, such as farming, reforestation, game preserves and recreation.

Delta county, along with the rest of the upper peninsula, must soon take an inventory of its possibilities. With lumbering and mining declining in economic importance, the various communities will have to find other means of gaining their livelihood. The region is still wealthy in those recreational advantages that serve to attract tourists. A land economic survey will enable this region to plan for a better utilization of its natural facilities.

C. C. C. ROWDIES

THE citizens of Iron River have been aroused to protest against the rowdyism shown by young men of the Civilian Conservation Corps when they come to town while on furlough from their duties in the forestry camps.

According to newspaper reports from Iron River, the C. C. C. men have been going on sprees that recalled to the memories of old-timers the old days when lumberjacks came in to spend their winter's stake. They indulged in drinking and fighting, and kept the police officers busy bringing them to jail.

Of course, not all members of the Civilian Conservation Corps are to be classed with the rowdies who have been getting into trouble. There are many young men, who are applying themselves to their work and studies at the camps in a manner that will be beneficial to them in later years. It is unfortunate that a portion of the membership should bring such disrepute upon the Civilian Conservation Corps as a whole.

Officers of the camp near Iron River have promised to exercise a more strict control over the activities in their charge in the future. Excepting for the objections to the actions of some of the men while on leave the upper peninsula is vitally interested in the program of the Civilian Conservation Corps. This northern region hopes that the C. C. C. will be able to undo some of the harmful results caused by the ruthless, wasteful lumbering methods employed by the pioneer timber barons who thoughtlessly thought that Michigan's pine forest wealth was inexhaustible or else they didn't care.

RACE SUICIDE

ESCANABA conformed with the general trend in the United States toward a lower birth rate last year, figures from the census bureau in Washington showing that this city had a decline from 25.4 per 1,000 population in 1932 to 25.5 in 1933.

The reduction of the birth rate rate has caused many sociologists to wonder how long it will be before the population of the United States becomes stationary or begins to decrease from its highest point.

The birth rate for continental United States reached in 1933 the lowest ever recorded. While 2,064,944 infants a number exceeding the population of Philadelphia, were added to the population of the United States in the year, this represents only 16.4 births for each thousand of the country's inhabitants. It is a decrease of nearly 6 per cent from the rate of 17.4 in the previous year, which shows, however, that the stork makes more visits to Escanaba than his average for the country.

The seven States with the highest birth rates are all largely rural. They are, in order, New Mexico, North Carolina and Utah, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama, and Virginia.

The birth rate in New Mexico, the State heading the list, is about 63 per cent higher than the national average. With the exception of Utah, all the States in this list are in the South.

The lowest birth rates are shown by two Pacific States, Oregon and California. That of Oregon, 12.2 per thousand, is 25 per cent below the average for the Nation.

The low birth rate in the Pacific States is usually attributed to the fact that the populations of those States include a relatively large number of older people.

LEARN TO SWIM

JOEL OLSON, lifeguard at the Escanaba municipal beach, is resuming this week his summer program of instruction in swimming and life saving, under the auspices of the American Red Cross.

A schedule of classes has been arranged at convenient hours, and the general public is invited to enroll.

While there probably were fewer drownngs in 1933 than in 1932, because of the absence of serious floods, the national experience each year has not been encouraging. The 1932 total was 7,712. At present too little is known of the national experience for 1933 to permit a reliable estimate, but during the ten years from 1920 to 1929 a total of 73,733 persons lost their lives through accidental drowning.

The Red Cross program, being offered in this city, will enable swimmers to learn life saving and resuscitation. This knowledge may sometime be the means of saving a life.

MOTORING PROBLEMS

MOTOR travel in some of its phases has led in point of common attention in Michigan daily newspapers in recent days.

The Detroit Free Press, dealing with dangers of the highways, begins

One of the serious drawbacks to motor travel today is the increasing number of bulky, ponderous and fastmoving trucks on the road. It is no exaggeration to say that the necessity of meeting or passing these long lumbering machines spoils driving for very many people, and all motorists find them a real as well as a mental hazard. A law passed in 1933 permits trucks and trailers to be 8 feet 6 inches wide from tire to tire and 8 feet 6 inches high and 35 feet long, with trailers carrying the total length to 50 feet. Even longer vehicles travel the roads today, but their operators must cease at the end of next year. Speed limits of 35 miles an hour are fixed for most of these and plants for trucks traveling faster are [illegible]

The Muskegon Chronicle deals with the danger of motorists [illegible] lies a Sunday morning [illegible] of the Pioneer and continues:

"That the President is deeply concerned over the staggering toll of death, injuries and heavy property damage caused by highway accidents is hardly surprising. The figures compiled by the National Safety Council are [illegible] national scandals. No one will quarrel with his assertion that we cannot escape attention to [illegible] with this problem. That some more strict and rigid method of supervising [illegible] traffic is needed is self-evident. It probably will take a long time to work out such methods and put it into operation. Meanwhile as the President suggests, everything will be packed if each motorist remembers every time he takes the wheel that it is up to him, as an individual, to see that his part of the traffic stream, at least, is kept free from accidents."

The Kalamazoo Gazette notes the greatly increased number of tourists reported from Yellowstone park and then it adds:

"Instead of indicating unusually severe competition for the Michigan tourist-resort trade, the Yellowstone report may well be taken as reflecting a trend which is likely to benefit every important outdoor playground in the nation Michigan included. Indeed, reports from various tourist-resort authorities in our own state already justify a belief that the season now getting under way will be one of the most prosperous in Michigan's recent history. With the early outlook as favorable as it is, it certainly behooves the tourist-resort interests of this commonwealth to do everything they can to make this prospect come true."

"Stay Out of My Life!"

(By NEA Service) BY SOPHIE KERR

CHAPTER XVI

Amy's voice was reproachful. "But a helpless child, Jane, who didn't ask to be born—"

"None of us asked to be born," Jane answered. "I wish to heaven I'd never been. I wish I were dead. I've wished it a thousand times ever since—"

"But Jane, this man. Hasn't he any decent feeling? He ought to be looking out for you. Doesn't he care? Don't you care anything about him?"

"No, I don't. I even loathe thinking about him."

Amy knew Jane was speaking the truth. "But you must have loved him," she persisted. "After all, you couldn't have lived with him without caring something about him, at first, anyway."

"I loved Howard," said Jane dully. "This man was exciting, and he flattered me and made love to me, and I met him halfway, if you want to know. Oh, you can look at me, Amy, and be horrified, but I don't see why women shouldn't have affairs like men, and think no more about it. There's no reason why not. Is there, honestly?"

"I don't know that there is, only I can't think so. It's one of the things that sound all right, but never work out."

"I can see that last pretty plain myself, now. But I did love Howard, Amy, and after I knew he didn't love me can't you understand, this other man going so crazy about me made me feel better, made me like myself again when I'd been hating myself. I was awful to you about Howard, Amy. But you know it was because it hit me so hard."

"Yes, I did know. Jane, I'm so sorry."

"There's no use being sorry. We won't drag that stuff out again. You're going to stay with me, aren't you, Amy? If you only knew how glad I am to see you, and to have somebody I can talk to and be natural with. Stay a little while, Amy, even if it's only a few days. I'll die if you leave me."

"Yes," said Amy. "I'm going to stay. I'll send Mother a telegram. I'll have to get my bag. It's checked at the station. And I ought to cancel my Pullman."

"And have your ticket extended. I'll send the maid. She's smart—too smart sometimes. You don't want to go out in this heat again." Jane had become normal, practical. She sat down at her desk, wrote directions, addresses, then rang for the maid and started her off. Emma, Kitty's successor, was another West Indian, quiet and intelligent.

Amy took off her hat, washed her face and hands and tried to compass the utter strangeness of the situation. This was so difficult that she retreated to trivialities. She found herself telling Jane scraps of Marburg news, Vanny Hough's new car, Louise March's marriage to a man from Chicago, Henry Berwyn's accident in his boat, Edgar Moreland's engagement to a girl who had visited the Pattersons.

"That's funny," said Jane, who had been listening with scant interest. "I never thought Edgar would care about any girl but you. The boys all liked you, Amy. You were far and away the most popular girl in town."

"Whatever that may mean. Edgar wasn't serious about me. It was just that we'd known each other all our lives."

"I don't believe anybody really loves more than once," went on Jane. "Do you?"

"I don't know what I believe about love except except that it's the only miracle we ever know. Nothing else explains it." She stopped, embarrassed by speaking out a secret thought. They mustn't talk like this. She looked about the apartment. "This is a very queer place, Jane," she continued. "I thought you told me last year that you had grass cloth on the walls."

"Oh, I took that off when I went Spanish. You don't like this?"

"I'm not sure. I never saw anything like it before."

"I know," said Jane, rallying. "you don't think any place can be lived in if there's no piano. I'll rent one for you while you're here."

"Oh, mercy, don't think of it. Goodness only knows what it would cost."

"I can afford it," said Jane cockily. "I've made heaps of money. I invested the money my father left in Aunt Rosa's trust and more than doubled it."

For the first time since she had entered the house Amy laughed. "That sounds like the old Jane, indeed it does."

"Bragging, you mean." Jane laughed a little, too. "But Amy, it's true. I have made a lot of money and I'll make a lot more once I get out of this mess. You know I was always clever about money. I'll telephone for a piano. They can bring it in the morning and then you can play as much as you want. There's nothing else to do while we're waiting."

It was not until late that night, after Amy had gone to bed on the Spanish couch and was lying there kept awake by the unaccustomed place and noise, that it occurred to her that Jane had never once asked her to keep her secret. This confidence touched Amy profoundly. "She knows I'd never tell," she thought. "But I'm awfully glad she didn't ask me not to. It makes everything better between us."

It was good to be with Jane again, the grudge wiped out. But Jane! To have done this mad, this awful thing! "She's brave," thought Amy. "She's got a fierce relentless sort of courage that never gives in. I don't see why she hasn't gone raving mad. I don't believe it seems real to her, any more than it does to me."

She wondered about Thorpe, what sort of a man he might be, and she thought, with humility and thankfulness of her own marriage, and of Howard, and their happiness, their content together. She remembered what she had said to Jane—"I only wish this was my child!" A child was the only thing that could add to her and to Howard's life.

"I must persuade Jane not to send hers away to be adopted," she thought. "That would be a lot more wicked than just having it." She drifted into sleep intent

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

Copyright 1934 by Douglas Malloch

IT WAS THE RAIN

When we look back along the lane
Of life, remember sun and rain,
Although the sun brought brighter hours,
It was the rain that brought the flowers
The sun was yellow at the morn,
But in the moonlight love was born
The springtime brought the vernal leaf,
But faith grew firmer after grief.

When we look back along the years
Of life, remember smiles and tears,
Although the smile may bring us friends,
The truer love our tears attends.
The smile of happiness may fade,
And with it all the friends it made,
But friends who come because of care
Are friends, or they would not be there.

When we look back along the past,
Strange what things alter, what things last.
The things we strive and struggle for
Fly out the window, leave the door,
In something that we thought of loss
We find a surer happiness.
Faith after grief, peace after pain,
What brought them then? It was the rain.

The Kalamazoo Gazette notes the greatly increased number of tourists reported from Yellowstone park and then it adds:

"Instead of indicating unusually secere competition for the Michigan tourist-resort trade, the Yellowstone report may well be taken as reflecting a trend which is likely to benefit every important outdoor playground in the nation—Michigan included. Indeed, reports from various tourist-resort authorities in our own state already justify a belief that the season now getting under way will be one of the most prosperous in Michigan's recent history. With the early outlook as favorable as it is, it certainly behooves the tourist-resort interests of this commonwealth to do everything they can to make this prospect come true."

CHAPTER XVI

Amy's voice was reproachful "But a helpless child, Jane, who didn't ask to be born—"

"None of us asked to be born," Jane answered. "I wish to heaven I'd never been. I wish I were dead. I've wished it a thousand times—ever since—"

"But Jane, this man. Hasn't he any decent feeling? He ought to be looking out for you. Doesn't he care? Don't you care anything about him?"

"No, I don't. I even loathe thinking about him."

Amy knew Jane was speaking the truth. "But you must have loved him," she persisted. "After all, you couldn't have lived with him without caring something about him, at first, anyway."

"I loved Howard," said Jane dully. "This man was exciting, and he flattered me and made love to me, and I met him halfway, if you want to know. Oh, you can look at me, Amy, and be horrified, but I don't see why women shouldn't have affairs like men, and think no more about it. There's no reason why not. Is there, honestly?"

"I don't know that there is, only I can't think so. It's one of the things that sound all right, but never work out."

"I can see that last pretty plain myself, now. But I did love Howard, Amy, and after I knew he didn't love me—can't you understand, this other man going so crazy about me made me feel better, made me like myself again when I'd been hating myself. I was awful to you about Howard, Amy. But you knew it was because it hit me so hard."

"Yes, I did know. Jane—I'm so sorry."

"There's no use being sorry. We won't drag that stuff out again. You're going to stay with me, aren't you, Amy? If you only knew how glad I am to see you, and to have somebody I can talk to and be natural with. Stay a little while, Amy, even if it's only a few days. I'll die if you leave me."

"Yes," said Amy, "I'm going to stay. I'll send Mother a telegram. I'll have to get my bag. It's checked at the station. And I ought to cancel my Pullman."

"And have your ticket extended. I'll send the maid. She's smart—too smart sometimes. You don't want to go out in this heat again." Jane had become normal, practical. She sat down at her desk, wrote directions, addresses, then rang for the maid and started her off. Emma, Kitty's successor, was another West Indian, quiet and intelligent.

Amy took off her hat, washed her face and hands and tried to compass the utter strangeness of the situation. This was so difficult that she retreated to trivialities. She found herself telling Jane scraps of Marburg news, Vanny Hough's new car, Louise March's marriage to a man from Chicago, Henry Berwyn's accident in his boat, Edgar Moreland's engagement to a girl who had visited the Pattersons.

"That's funny," said Jane, who had been listening with scant interest. "I never thought Edgar would care about any girl but you. The boys all liked you, Amy. You were far and away the most popular girl in town."

"Whatever that may mean. Edgar wasn't serious about me. It was just that we'd known each other all our lives."

"I don't believe anybody really loves more than once," went on Jane. "Do you?"

"I don't know what I believe about love—except—except that it's the only miracle we ever know. Nothing else explains it." She stopped, embarrassed by speaking out a secret thought. They mustn't talk like this. She looked about the apartment. "This is a very queer place, Jane," she continued. "I thought you told me last year that you had grass cloth on the walls."

"Oh, I took that off when I went Spanish. You don't like this?"

"I'm not sure. I never saw anything like it before."

"I know," said Jane, rallying, "you don't think any place can be lived in if there's no piano. I'll rent one for you while you're here."

"Oh, mercy, don't think of it. Goodness only knows what it would cost."

"I can afford it," said Jane cockily. "I've made heaps of money. I invested the money my father left in Aunt Rosa's trust and more than doubled it."

For the first time since she had entered the house Amy laughed. "That sounds like the old Jane, indeed it does."

"Bragging, you mean." Jane laughed a little, too. "But Amy, it's true. I have made a lot of money and I'll make a lot more once I get out of this mess. You know I was always clever about money. I'll telephone for a piano. They can bring it in the morning and then you can play as much as you want. There's nothing else to do while we're waiting."

It was not until late that night, after Amy had gone to bed on the Spanish couch and was lying there kept awake by the unaccustomed place and noise, that it occurred to her that Jane had never once asked her to keep her secret. This confidence touched Amy profoundly. "She knows I'd never tell," she thought. "But I'm awfully glad she didn't ask me not to. It makes everything better between us."

It was good to be with Jane again, the grudge wiped out. But Jane! To have done this mad, this awful thing! "She's brave," thought Amy. "She's got a fierce relentless sort of courage that never gives in. I don't see why she hasn't gone raving mad. I don't believe it seems real to her, any more than it does to me."

She wondered about Thorpe, what sort of a man he might be, and she thought, with humility and thankfulness of her own marriage, and of Howard, and their happiness, their content together. She remembered what she had said to Jane—"I only wish this was my child!" A child was the only thing that could add to her and to Howard's life.

"I must persuade Jane not to send hers away to be adopted," she thought. "That would be a lot more wicked than just having it." She drifted into sleep intent

LYRICS OF LIFE

IT WAS THE RAIN

When we look back along the lane
Of life, remember sun and rain,
Although the sun brought brighter hours,
It was the rain that brought the flow'rs.
The sun was yellow at the morn,
But in the moonlight love was born.
The springtime brought the vernal leaf,
But faith grew firmer after grief.

When we look back along the years
Of life, remember smiles and tears.
Although the smile may bring us friends,
The truer love our tears attends.
The smile of happiness may fade,
And with it all the friends it made,
But friends who come because of care
Are friends, or they would not be there.

When we look back along the past,
Strange what things alter, what things last.
The things we strive and struggle for
Fly out the window, leave the door.
In something that we thought of less
We find a surer happiness.
Faith after grief, peace after pain,
What brought them then? It was the rain.

One of the largest trout caught this season by an Escanaba fisherman was sent down yesterday by Bernard Schram, 12 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Schram, from Dryad, where he is camped with several boy companions. The trout measured 15 3-4 inches and was landed by the lad only after a battle lasting for nearly 20 minutes.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Horace Atkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Atkins of Escanaba, to Miss Madeliene Armour of Chicago.

MEMORIAL HELD FOR A. H. RYALL

Bar Association Members Pay Tribute Monday In Court Rites

Tribute to the record and achievements of Attorney A. H. Ryall, who died on March 20 of this year, was paid by members of the Delta county bar association at a memorial ceremony in the Delta county court room at Escanaba Monday afternoon. The ceremony took place at 2 p. m., and following its completion court was adjourned for the day.

Attorney H. J. Rushton acted as chairman, and the first action was the adoption of a memorial resolution, read by Attorney James E. Frost, associate of Attorney Ryall for many years.

Others of the bar association who spoke informally of their associations with Attorney Ryall, and of their high regard for his character, reputation and ability, included: Attorneys, H. J. Rushton, Judd Yelland, M. Robert Deo, T. E. Strom, C. E. Lewis, president of the Delta bar association; W. J. Miller, prosecuting attorney; Glenn W. Jackson and James E. Frost.

A talk by Judge Frank A. Bell closed the session. Judge Bell characterized Attorney Ryall as a "fighter" when carrying on a law case, with a thoroughness typical of the "old school" of lawyers, and a charming conversationalist out of court.

"His death challenges us," said Judge Bell, "to ask ourselves whether we are leaving a record to be proud of, one that will be a contribution to the welfare of those who follow behind."

Cattle Poisoned On Garden Farm; Bran Bait Blamed

Accompanied by Dr. L. J. Heiden, county veterinarian, Sheriff William E. Miron was called to Garden to investigate the poisoning of a herd of cows on the James Tatrow farm, which resulted in the death of at least six of the cows and violent illness of others, which have a bare chance to recover.

Indications pointed to grasshopper bait as the probable cause of the poisoning. The bait, which is composed of bran, salt, and molasses, with a poison base of sodium arsenite, had been spread out to kill off young grasshoppers, but the man in charge of the distribution had apparently left the bran mixture lying in chunks instead of spreading it out thinly in the pasture to which the cattle had access.

In order to definitely determine the cause of death, Dr. Heiden took stomach samples which will be sent to East Lansing for analysis, and Sheriff Miron is warning farmers to use extreme care in following directions regarding the spreading of poison bait. According to instructions given by the agricultural department, bait spread thinly is just as effective in killing hoppers, will cover more ground, and will avoid the danger of poisoning.

INDIA IS TOPIC IN ROTARY CLUB

Missionary Shaw Tells Of Conditions In Orient

"Behind the dirt and filth which passing tourists see as their impression of India, there is a great people, a great country," said the Rev. H. E. Shaw, returned missionary from the land of Punjab in northwest India, who was the guest speaker at the Escanaba Rotary club meeting Monday.

"When you speak of India, you are speaking of something big", said the speaker, pointing out that the nation was one of widely varied conditions, with 180 languages, 550 dialects, 2,000 social castes, and 700 provinces and states.

The province in which he was stationed, The Rev. Shaw said derived its name from "the land of five rivers", the Indus and its four tributaries, the Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi and Sutlej, all of which have their sources in the Himalayas which are one of the boundaries of Punjab.

Debt Is Enemy

This northern province where he has been working, the missionary said, was made up of a stronger, sturdier, healthier people than those in the south of India, but their big handicaps of poverty and debt are much the same. The average cash income for a family was given at $30 a year, and the activities of the missionaries and the government has been directed toward lessening the poverty in this nation which is 90 per cent rural.

A rural reconstruction program has been launched by the government, in which the missionaries are assisting. Better cattle, better seeds, hardier oxen for draft purposes, and improved water supply conditions are a part of the program, which on the other side is fighting the drains on the income, which are marriage, litigation, death and ornaments.

"Debt is my special enemy," said the Rev. Shaw. He said that 80 per cent of the people were in debt, with an average debt of $100, and interest on debts taking an average of 80 per cent of the income of the families.

The natives are also strong for buying ornaments, and in many cases buy gold jewelry for their wives while letting their children starve or fall victim to insects and disease rather than buy needed quinine and mosquito netting. Court action in petty quarrels also is a drain on income which the government is trying to discourage in effecting settlements in disputes. Marriages cost the father much money, due to the custom of bestowing gifts and making an elabaroto ceremony for daughters given in marriage.

Gandhi A Politician

Touching on the political situation in India, the speaker alluded to the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi, one of the troubles in a nation which is continually in an upset politically. Round table conferences so far have failed to get results, one faction of the nation demanding complete independence from Britain. Gandhi's campaign, he said, was launched to help the suppressed class of Hindus, and in this, Gandhi was acting as a politician. Instances of political persecution of those Christians who refused to join political groups was reported. Gandhi's "untouchables" were so named because of the fact that those of high caste think that they are polluted if they come in contact with the suppressed class.

About one-half the population of Punjab is Mohammedan, and nearly two-fifth Hindus. There are over two million Sikhs and 66,000 Christians. The main food in Punjab is wheat, which is also the main crop. Pulse, the pulp of a pea-like growth, is also a part of the limited diet. Some corn, cotton, sugar, jute and rice are produced, though rice is not grown extensively in the north of India.

The Rev. Shaw came to the Rotary meeting as a guest of O. V. Thatcher, and was introduced by W. J. Clarke of the program committee. It was announced that the next meeting, on Thursday, July 19, would be ladies night and joint meeting with the Gladstone club at the Delta hotel. The meeting will open at 6:15 with a dinner, and the speaker of the evening will be Douglas Malloch, well known locally as a writer of poetry.

Fire Prevention Was Main Job Of Cedar River CCC

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., July 9. Work in fire prevention and tree planting occupied the attention of the men of civilian conservation corps camp, SP 9, near Cedar River, during the month of June, according to a report forwarded to CCC headquarters by the camp superintendent.

Fire hazards of forty acres of land were reduced, and a half mile of M 35 was cleared for prevention of fires, it was reported. Truck trails through the forest were constructed. The camp now has the use of a caterpillar tractor and grader, according to the superintendent's report.

Over 30,000 white and Norway pine seedlings were planted during the spring by the men of this camp. The thirty acres remaining to be planted will be planted during July, it was learned.

Only 25 of the 57 attempts at crossing the atlantic in heavier-than-air machines were completed without loss of life.

LUECKE SEEKS SENATORSHIP

Escanaba Councilman to Be Democratic Candidate

Councilman John Luecke of Escanaba announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator from the Thirtieth senatorial district in the September primary election.

John Luecke

Mr. Luecke made his decision to run after members of Escanaba Local No. 209, International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, and representatives of other labor organizations adopted, at a meeting held Sunday night in the Odd Follows hall, a resolution, urging him to become a candidate.

Mr. Luecke was elected to the Escanaba city council by a heavy vote, leading the field of five candidates. He was born in Escanaba and has lived here his entire lifetime, excepting for the period of world war service.

He is employed at the Escanaba Paper company. As secretary of the local Paper Makers' Union and president of the Escanaba Trades and Labor Council, he has been active in union affairs. During the last several years, he also has been engaged as a labor organizer in the upper peninsula and northeastern Wisconsin for the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Luecke did not announce his platform yesterday, but he informed the Press that he would actively champion during the campaign the county reform amendment proposal, upon which the people will vote in the November election.

He is the only Democratic candidate for the state senatorship of this district, which comprises the counties of Delta, Menominee, Alger, Schoolcraft, Luce, Chippewa and Mackinac. Benjamin Gero, well known Manistique businessman, was drafted recently by Republicans of this district to become a candidate, after the incumbent, W. F. Doyle of Menominee, had announced he would not seek reelection.

This Game Of Politics

Peter A. LeClaire, 918 Superior avenue, Gladstone, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county clerk in September primary, according to word received from the office of the Democratic county committee. Thus far, he is the only Democrat to seek this office. County Clerk R. H. Labro is the only Republican to announce.

LeClaire was reared in Nahma, and has been employed as a fireman for the Soo Line railway for more than a score years.

There will be two Democratic candidates for county coroner this fall, it was learned yesterday. One is William Mileski, incumbent, and Dr. W. A. Corcoran is the other. Dr. C. J. Bartley, a Republican, is Delta county's other coroner.

Friends of Atty. Denis McGinn are reported to be urging him to seek the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney. McGinn served as assistant to Glenn W. Jackson of Gladstone when the latter was prosecutor. Atty. McGinn, however, is non-committal concerning his political plans.

John Luecke, member of the Escanaba city council and prominent union labor leader, has decided to become a candidate for the state senatorship from this district on the Democratic ticket. Benjamin Gero of Manistique is the Republican candidate. They are seeking the office to be vacated by W. F. Doyle of Menominee, who has decided not to run because of the press of private business. Doyle, who is advertising and sales manager of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, was elected in the fall of 1932, succeeding H. J. Rushton of Escanaba, who retired from politics after serving three terms in the senate. Rushton sponsored the measure, which resulted in the establishment up the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba.

Supervisor James Dotsch of Garden township is being mentioned in some quarters as a possible candidate for representative from Delta county in the state legislature on the Democratic ticket. The present representative, Peter R. Legg, also a Democrat, has already announced that he is a candidate for reelection. E. R. Carter of Gladstone, former representative, is the only Republican candidate for this office to formally announce his intentions. Dotsch, who is in his thirties, is no novice in the game of politics. A number of years ago, he served as the "boy mayor" of Garden village, having been elected to the office shortly after reaching voting age. He is the son of the late Atty. Henry Dotsch of Escanaba. Supervisor Dotsch is engaged in the commercial fishing business.

Escanaba Docks Handle 270,779 Tons During Month of June

Iron ore shipments from the Escanaba docks during the last month more than tripled the record of the same period for 1933, according to comparative figures compiled by the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association. The total for June 1934 is 270,779 tons, while June 1933 had but 88,898 tons. Out of the 1934 total, 183,565 tons were handled at the C. & N. W. docks, and 87,214 at the Milwaukee Road docks.

The same increase is noted in the total for the year up to July 1. Shipments up to July 1 last year totalled 105,164 tons, while the total for this year is 442,526 tons.

For all Upper Lake ports, the total June shipments increased from 1,281,269 tons in 1933 to 4,460,807 tons in 1934, or 248.15 percent. Up to July 1 last year the record was 2,265,013 tons, and this year it is 7,091,385 tons, an increase of 213.08 percent.

MEET GUY BUSH...star pitcher for the Chicago Cubs! Guy won 20 games last year...pitched in all 264 innings...and he's pitching at an .800 clip this year. Like many athletes, Guy has found that at the end of a gruelling match, nothing brings back his energy and vitality like a Camel.

YOU TOO can increase Vim and Energy...quickly!

When you feel "used up"—smoke a Camel! Fatigue and irritability fade away. Your flow of natural energy snaps back to a higher level in a few minutes.

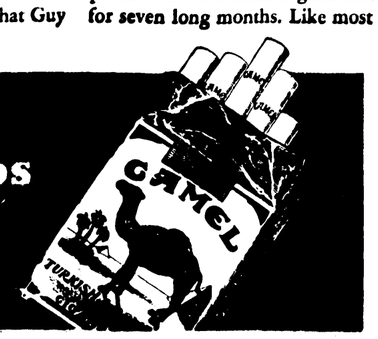
This experience is well known to millions of Camel smokers. It has been confirmed by a famous New York research laboratory.

Take for example Guy Bush. There's a lesson in what Guy has to say about the "energizing effect" in Camels:

"Bases full, one out, and a strike. I'm watching the bases and the batter, too. Now I've got to pitch. The pitch—and it's two strikes! Will he strike out? You think so...and yet you can't tell. Baseball is full of tough spots that take it out of a pitcher who works his regular turn and stands up to the grind for seven long months. Like most of the big-league pitchers, I smoke Camels. And when I come out of a game after nine hard innings there's nothing that lifts up my energy the way a Camel does. I feel freshened up in no time at all. I smoke a lot. Camels never interfere with my nerves!"

Learn to "get a lift with a Camel" whenever your energy runs low. Smoke as constantly as you like. The finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never upset the nerves.

CAMEL'S Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves



● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand.

You must RELAX these BUSY DAYS
"I DON'T SEE HOW I CAN CROWD IN ALL I HAVE TO DO THIS AFTERNOON."
"I'M JUST AS BUSY AS YOU, JANE. BUT I'VE LEARNED TO RELAX WITH BLUE RIBBON"
"THAT WAS A GRAND IDEA! I'VE BEEN GOING ALL DAY AND STILL..."
..FEEL GREAT!"

When the days aren't long enough to crowd in all the things you must do...shopping...bridge...guests for dinner ...stop a minute. Relax. Drink a bottle of sparkling satisfying Pabst Blue Ribbon. You, too, will find that its refreshing coolness rests you...But don't spoil your remedy by drinking ordinary beer. MEMORIAL HELD FOR A. H. RYALL

Bar Association Members Pay Tribute Monday In Court Rites

Tribute to the record and achievements of Attorney A. H. Ryall, who died on March 20 of this year, was paid by members of the Delta county bar association at a memorial ceremony in the Delta county court room at Escanaba Monday afternoon. The ceremony took place at 2 p. m., and following its completion court was adjourned for the day.

A talk by Judge Frank A. Bell closed the session. Judge Bell characterized Attorney Ryall as a "fighter" when carrying on a law case, with a thoroughness typical of the "old school" of lawyers, and a charming conversationalist out of court.

"His death challenges us," said Judge Bell, "to ask ourselves whether we are leaving a record to be proud of, one that will be a contribution to the welfare of those who follow behind."

Indications pointed to grasshopper bait as the probable cause of the poisoning. The bait, which is composed of bran, salt, and molasses, with a poison base of sodium arsenite, had been spread out to kill off young grasshoppers, but the man in charge of the distribution had apparently left the bran mixture lying in chunks instead of spreading it out thinly in the pasture to which the cattle had access.

In order to definitely determine the cause of death, Dr. Heiden took stomach samples which will be sent to East Lansing for analysis, and Sheriff Miron is warning farmers to use extreme care in following directions regarding the spreading of poison bait. According to instructions given by the agricultural department, bait spread thinly is just as effective in killing hoppers, will cover more ground, and will avoid the danger of poisoning.

INDIA IS TOPIC IN ROTARY CLUB

Missionary Shaw Tells Of Conditions In Orient

"Behind the dirt and filth which passing tourists see as their impression of India, there is a great people, a great country," said the Rev. H. E. Shaw, returned missionary from the land of Punjab in northwest India, who was the guest speaker at the Escanaba Rotary club meeting Monday.

"When you speak of India, you are speaking of something big", said the speaker, pointing out that the nation was one of widely varied conditions, with 180 languages, 550 dialects, 2,000 social castes, and 700 provinces and states.

The province in which he was stationed, The Rev. Shaw said derived its name from "the land of five rivers", the Indus and its four tributaries, the Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi and Sutlej, all of which have their sources in the Himalayas which are one of the boundaries of Punjab.

Debt Is Enemy

This northern province where he has been working, the missionary said, was made up of a stronger, sturdier, healthier people than those in the south of India, but their big handicaps of poverty and debt are much the same. The average cash income for a family was given at $30 a year, and the activities of the missionaries and the government has been directed toward lessening the poverty in this nation which is 90 per cent rural.

A rural reconstruction program has been launched by the government, in which the missionaries are assisting. Better cattle, better seeds, hardier oxen for draft purposes, and improved water supply conditions are a part of the program, which on the other side is fighting the drains on the income, which are marriage, litigation, death and ornaments.

"Debt is my special enemy," said the Rev. Shaw. He said that 80 per cent of the people were in debt, with an average debt of $100, and interest on debts taking an average of 80 per cent of the income of the families.

The natives are also strong for buying ornaments, and in many cases buy gold jewelry for their wives while letting their children starve or fall victim to insects and disease rather than buy needed quinine and mosquito netting. Court action in petty quarrels also is a drain on income which the government is trying to discourage in effecting settlements in disputes. Marriages cost the father much money, due to the custom of bestowing gifts and making an elabarote ceremony for daughters given in marriage.

Gandhi A Politician

Touching on the political situation in India, the speaker alluded to the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi, one of the troubles in a nation which is continually in an upset politically. Round table conferences so far have failed to get results, one faction of the nation demanding complete independence from Britain. Gandhi's campaign, he said, was launched to help the suppressed class of Hindus, and in this, Gandhi was acting as a politician. Instances of political persecution of those Christians who refused to join political groups was reported. Gandhi's "untouchables" were so named because of the fact that those of high caste think that they are polluted if they come in contact with the suppressed class.

About one-half the population of Punjab is Mohammedan, and nearly two-fifth Hindus. There are over two million Sikhs and 66,000 Christians. The main food in Punjab is wheat, which is also the main crop. Pulse, the pulp of a pea-like growth, is also a part of the limited diet. Some corn, cotton, sugar, jute and rice are produced, though rice is not grown extensively in the north of India.

The Rev. Shaw came to the Rotary meeting as a guest of O. V. Thatcher, and was introduced by W. J. Clarke of the program committee. It was announced that the next meeting, on Thursday, July 19, would be ladies night and joint meeting with the Gladstone club at the Delta hotel. The meeting will open at 6:15 with a dinner, and the speaker of the evening will be Douglas Malloch, well known locally as a writer of poetry.

Fire Prevention Was Main Job Of Cedar River CCC

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., July 9.—Work in fire prevention and tree planting occupied the attention of the men of civilian conservation corps camp, SP 9, near Cedar River, during the month of June, according to a report forwarded to CCC headquarters by the camp superintendent.

Fire hazards of forty acres of land were reduced, and a half mile of M 35 was cleared for prevention of fires, it was reported. Truck trails through the forest were constructed. The camp now has the use of a caterpillar tractor and grader, according to the superintendent's report.

Over 30,000 white and Norway pine seedlings were planted during the spring by the men of this camp. The thirty acres remaining to be planted will be planted during July, it was learned.

Only 25 of the 57 attempts at crossing the Atlantic in heavier-than-air machines were completed without loss of life.

Escanaba Councilman to Be Democratic Candidate

Councilman John Luecke of Escanaba announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator from the Thirtieth senatorial district in the September primary election.

Mr. Luecke made his decision to run after members of Escanaba Local No. 209, International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, and representatives of other labor organizations adopted, at a meeting held Sunday night in the Odd Fellows hall, a resolution, urging him to become a candidate.

Mr. Luecke was elected to the Escanaba city council by a heavy vote, leading the field of five candidates. He was born in Escanaba and has lived here his entire lifetime, excepting for the period of world war service.

He is employed at the Escanaba Paper company. As secretary of the local Paper Makers' Union and president of the Escanaba Trades and Labor Council, he has been active in union affairs. During the last several years, he also has been engaged as a labor organizer in the upper peninsula and northeastern Wisconsin for the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Luecke did not announce his platform yesterday, but he informed the Press that he would actively champion during the campaign the county reform amendment proposal, upon which the people will vote in the November election.

He is the only Democratic candidate for the state senatorship of this district, which comprises the counties of Delta, Menominee, Alger, Schoolcraft, Luce, Chippewa and Mackinac. Benjamin Gero, well known Manistique businessman, was drafted recently by Republicans of this district to become a candidate, after the incumbent, W. F. Doyle of Menominee, had announced he would not seek reelection.

This Game Of Politics

Peter A. LeClaire, 918 Superior avenue, Gladstone, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county clerk in September primary, according to word received from the office of the Democratic county committee. Thus far, he is the only Democrat to seek this office, County Clerk R. H. Labre is the only Republican to announce.

LeClaire was reared in Nahma, and has been employed as a fireman for the Soo Line railway for more than a score years.

There will be two Democratic candidates for county coroner this fall, it was learned yesterday. One is William Mileski, incumbent, and Dr. W. A. Corcoran is the other. Dr. C. J. Bartley, a Republican, is Delta county's other coroner.

Friends of Atty. Denis McGinn are reported to be urging him to seek the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney. McGinn served as assistant to Glenn W. Jackson of Gladstone when the latter was prosecutor. Atty. McGinn, however, is non-committal concerning his political plans.

John Luecke, member of the Escanaba city council and prominent union labor leader, has decided to become a candidate for the state senatorship from this district on the Democratic ticket. Benjamin Gero of Manistique is the Republican candidate. They are seeking the office to be vacated by W. F. Doyle of Menominee, who has decided not to run because of the press of private business. Doyle, who is advertising and sales manager of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, was elected in the fall of 1932, succeeding H. J. Rushton of Escanaba, who retired from politics after serving three terms in the senate. Rushton sponsored the measure, which resulted in the establishment up the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba.

Supervisor James Dotsch of Garden township is being mentioned in some quarters as a possible candidate for representative from Delta county in the state legislature on the Democratic ticket. The present representative, Peter R. Legg, also a Democrat, has already announced that he is a candidate for reelection. E. R. Carter of Gladstone, former representative, is the only Republican candidate for this office to formally announce his intentions. Dotsch, who is in his thirties, is no novice in the game of politics. A number of years ago, he served as the "boy mayor" of Garden village, having been elected to the office shortly after reaching voting age. He is the son of the late Atty. Henry Dotsch of Escanaba. Supervisor Dotsch is engaged in the commercial fishing business.

MEET GUY BUSH...star pitcher for the Chicago Cubs! Guy won 20 games last year...pitched in all 264 innings...and he's pitching at an .800 clip this year. Like many athletes, Guy has found that at the end of a gruelling match, nothing brings back his energy and vitality like a Camel.

YOU TOO can increase Vim and Energy...quickly!

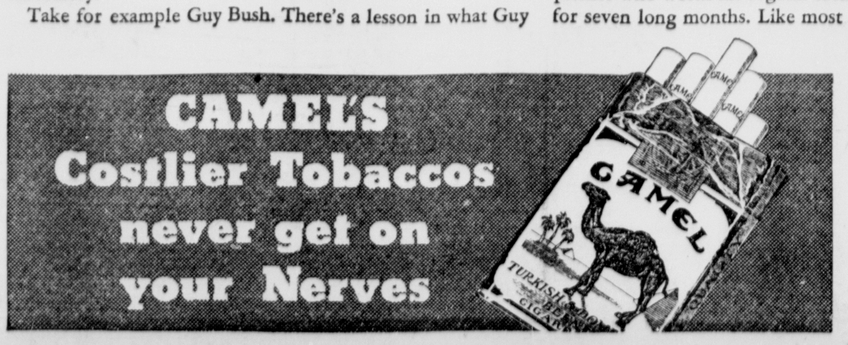
When you feel "used up"—smoke a Camel! Fatigue and irritability fade away. Your flow of natural energy snaps back to a higher level in a few minutes.

This experience is well known to millions of Camel smokers. It has been confirmed by a famous New York research laboratory.

Take for example Guy Bush. There's a lesson in what Guy has to say about the "energizing effect" in Camels:

"Bases full, one out, and a strike. I'm watching the bases and the batter, too. Now I've got to pitch. The pitch—and it's two strikes! Will he strike out? You think so...and yet you can't tell. Baseball is full of tough spots that take it out of a pitcher who works his regular turn and stands up to the grind for seven long months. Like most of the big-league pitchers, I smoke Camels. And when I come out of a game after nine hard innings there's nothing that lifts up my energy the way a Camel does. I feel freshened up in no time at all. I smoke a lot. Camels never interfere with my nerves!"

Learn to "get a lift with a Camel" whenever your energy runs low. Smoke as constantly as you like. The finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never upset the nerves.



● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS —Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

You must RELAX these BUSY DAYS
"I DON'T SEE HOW I CAN CROWD IN ALL I HAVE TO DO THIS AFTERNOON."
"I'M JUST AS BUSY AS YOU, JANE, BUT I'VE LEARNED TO RELAX WITH BLUE RIBBON."
"THAT WAS A GRAND IDEA! I'VE BEEN GOING ALL DAY AND STILL..."
..FEEL GREAT!"

When the days aren't long enough to crowd in all the things you must do...shopping...bridge...guests for dinner ...stop a minute. Relax. Drink a bottle of sparkling satisfying Pabst Blue Ribbon. You, too, will find that its refreshing coolness rests you...But don't spoil your remedy by drinking ordinary beer. Make sure that you get Pabst Blue Ribbon—pure and full flavored, with a distinctive taste that has made it America's first choice. Order a case today for your refrigerator.

Pioneers Observe Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Day

An occasion of particular interest to residents of this district was the celebration on Sunday of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Dickson of South Ford River, pioneer residents of that community, and well known in Escanaba.

The golden wedding day was observed with a reunion of family and relatives and close friends at the Dickson family home, at which the honored couple's two sons, Walter H. Dickson of this city, and Ernest of Watersmeet, and members of their families were among those present.

A dinner was served at 2 o'clock and the remainder of the afternoon and early evening spent in visiting and enjoying renewing acquaintances with old neighbors and friends who joined with the anniversary guests in extending their congratulations.

In the early days there was no Lake Shore road, and Mr. Dickson had often recalled driving with horse and buggy along the shore line to Misery Bay, with the waves often filling the buggy with water.

Pioneers Observe Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Day

An occasion of particular interest to residents of this district was the celebration on Sunday of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Dickson of South Ford River, pioneer residents of that community, and well known in Escanaba.

The golden wedding day was observed with a reunion of family and relatives and close friends at the Dickson family home, at which the honored couple's two sons, Walter H. Dickson of this city, and Ernest of Watersmeet, and members of their families were among those present.

A dinner was served at 2 o'clock and the remainder of the afternoon and early evening spent in visiting and enjoying renewing acquaintances with old neighbors and friends who joined with the anniversary guests in extending their congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson were presented with beautiful flowers and with a number of gifts.

Attending the anniversary dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dickson, of Watersmeet; Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Dickson and daughter, Frances Ann, Escanaba; Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson, Iron Mountain; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. William Kell, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McNelly and three children, and John Henderson, Wilson; Mrs. Grant Henderson, South Ford River, and Mrs. Elizabeth North, North Escanaba.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson were married in Canada and came to this country immediately following the wedding, settling in South Ford River and making their home continuously from that time. In the early days there was no Lake Shore road, and Mr. Dickson had often recalled driving with horse and buggy along the shore line to Misery Bay, with the waves often filling the buggy with water.

They have two sons, both of whom were with them on the happy occasion, and four grandchildren.

Comstock, at the Grand hotel; at the D. A. R. tea at which Mrs. Hazel Schermerhorn, state regent, entertained in the Grand hotel gardens; and as Adelina Patti in the historical pageant of Saturday which was presented over NBC network.

At the Governor's ball Mrs. Semer was described as unusually lovely in a French silver grey Patou model with red accessories. She sang with orchestra accompaniment.

Her numbers at the D. A. R. tea were "Indian Love Song," Friml, and "Italian Street Song," Villanelle, of which last song Barre Hill, Metropolitan opera baritone said, "I have never heard that sung when it produced a deeper effect upon me. I expect to hear big things of you."

Assisting Mrs. Schermerhorn at the beautifully appointed tea which honored visiting Daughters of the American Revolution, were Mrs. Henry Davis, Mrs. Etewart Woodfill, Miss Ella Joy and Mrs. Keith Line. Honor guests who arrived by plane in time to attend the tea, were Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the D. A. R., whose home is in Mount Holyoke, Mass., and Mrs. John F. JONES, HOLMAN BOARD MEMBERS

Annual School Election Held; Canvass Vote Thursday

James T. Jones and Samuel J. Holman were elected as members of the Gladstone board of education yesterday in a three-way school race that saw Hilmer J. Skogquist, veteran schoolman who sought reelection, defeated. The terms are for three years.

Jones polled a total of 271 votes, Holman 165 and Skogquist 151. One vote was cast for Arnold Froberg. A total of 299 ballots with a total of 588 votes were cast. The polling was about as heavy as ever marked a local school election. Canvassing of the votes will be made Thursday evening with members of the board sitting as a canvassing board.

Jones has served four terms on the board, having been named for three successive terms running from 1915 to 1924 and again being elected in 1931. Holman, the new member, while never having served as a school official, has previously held public office being president of the water board under the aldermanic form of city government. Skogquist, the retiring member, served three successive terms, first being named in 1925. He was secretary of the body.

Following canvass of the vote, probably some time during the coming week, an organization meeting will be held at which officers will be elected for the fiscal year.

Police Attempt to Locate Relatives Of Runaway Youth

A fourteen-year-old youth who gave his name as Joseph Charles and said he formerly lived in Detroit was picked up here by local officers and placed in custody of the county welfare officer, Theodore Ohlen, while efforts are being made to locate some relative of his in the auto city.

Ragged and dirty, the youth was first picked up on Sunday but when left alone for a short while skipped out. He spent the night in a refrigerator car in the yards and yesterday morning a man, who had spent the night in the same car but who hated seeing a lad so young "hitting the road," came to the police station and reported where the boy could be found. He was again picked up.

Sunday, the lad told officers that his name was Stevens and that he was bound for Escanaba where an uncle resided. Checkup revealed that the story was false. Yesterday, he gave the name of Charles and insisted that this was his right name. He told officers that his parents were dead and that he had lived till two months ago with a grandfather in Detroit. He said that his grandfather treated him unkindly and this had led to him leaving.

CHINA OFFERS TRADE FIELD

Development Might Be Way Out of Depression, Says Speaker

That the country of China offers a rich and fertile field for international trade which if taken advantage of by the United States might prove a way out of the depression was the belief expressed before the Gladstone Rotary club yesterday noon by Elder W. C. Hankins, Battle Creek, superintendent of Adventist work in the Upper Peninsula. Hankins, who at the present time is conducting an Adventist conference here, spent 19 years in China as a missionary.

Trade prospects in China are large and the country presents a far better field than does Japan, the speaker stated, citing that Japan at the present time is copying American methods of manufacture and to a great extent even imitating tradenames and trademarks.

The wealth of China is mainly in its undeveloped resources, the speaker said. It is rich in minerals but only few of the mines producing the more valuable metals are worked because of political conditions and lack of transportation. The elder stated that during his years in the country a friend had told him of a rich gold mine in the interior, the location of which he never divulged and which he never attempted to work for it would have been impossible to get to the coast with any of the metal.

Speaking of the people, Elder Hankin extolled their honesty and truthfulness, especially among certain classes. He said that when a rich Chinese pledged a certain amount of money toward missionary work, the money was as good as received.

A certain portion of the people are the opposite and make their livelihood by banditry and kidnaping for ransom. In the latter instances, relatives of the hostage are advised that a certain sum must be paid for release of the victim. This is along the lines of American methods but the Chinese bandits have a little trick of their own to speed up payment. If the money isn't paid as soon as desired, a finger may be severed from the hostage and sent to the relatives with a second message. Continued non-payment may result in forwarding of an ear or a piece of the nose and in many cases, where the relatives lack the money or refuse to pay death ends the torture.

Lack of roads would hamper auto trade, the roads throughout China being only about four to five feet wide, the speaker said, but highways could eventually be developed.

Foreign settlements or concessions in various large cities in China were described by the elder, who said that an American arriving in one of them would be hard put to know that he was really out of America. The foreign settlements are usually governed by one representative of each of the various nationals residing, plus one Chinese.

Extra territoriality which is granted foreigners was also touched upon by the speaker, who said that it was a necessity as Chinese courts were a good example of what courts should not be. Never is justice dispensed. Especially in cases of lawsuits the speaker said, the issue is never in doubt as the man paying the judge the most always wins the case.

In concluding, Elder Hankin pointed out that during the time he was in the country considerable development took place as far as business houses went, department stores having been established by enterprising companies, and streets widened in some of the larger cities. He said that on a whole, though, the country, which contains as it does some 450 millions of people, was untouched commercially and industrially and presented a great and profitable market that Americans should get the vision to reach for.

Next week, Rotarians will forego the regular meeting on Monday and will join Escanaba on Thursday evening to hear Douglas Malloch, the poet, J. M. Olson, R. J. Riley and C. E. Hawkins were named as the committee in charge of local attendance and arrangements.

The annual Upper Peninsula Rotary round-up will be held at Blaney on Saturday, July 28, with the Marquette club sponsoring, the event, it was disclosed and Chas. Green, Hugh Cavill and Wm. Skellenger form the committee in charge of the local delegation. Golfing, boating and baseball will be among the entertainments.

Changes On Curb Mostly Unimportant

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Changes on the curb exchange were mostly unimportant today as volume tapered further. Transfers, which approximated only 80,000 shares, were the lowest since March 30, 1933, when 70,000 shares were traded.

Small offerings appeared in some of the alcohol shares. Oils were a trifle irregular. Among the miscellaneous list Lerner Stores provided some excitement with a 4¼ point rise in a moderate turnover.

Hiram Walker dipped around 2 points while Distillers-Corporation-Seagrams slipped a small fraction. Electric Bond and Share, Gulf Oil and Wright Hargreaves also finished with small declines.

Standard Oil of Indiana, Glen Alden Coal, Sherwin Williams and Greyhound Corporation were steady. Swift International advanced nearly a point.

Mrs. Lambert Pays Tribute To Jesuits At St. Ignace Sunday

Mrs. Margaret Lambert, local full-blooded Indian woman in charge of the Manistique Chamber of Commerce tourist information bureau, Sunday delivered a splendid tribute to the Jesuits in behalf of the Indians of the upper peninsula, at colorful exercises held in St. Ignace as part of the Jean Nicolet tercentennial celebration.

Speaking through a loud speaker system, Mrs. Lambert first gave her address in the Ottawa language and then in English. The speaking program was also featured by an address by Father Philip Gordon, the only full-blooded Indian priest in the United States, who is now in charge of a parish in Northern Wisconsin.

Thousands jammed the streets of St. Ignace Sunday in commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the arrival of Jean Nicolet in the upper peninsula. A beautiful pageant in which the arrival of Father Marquette was portrayed, was enacted in the evening. The event was witnessed by a number of Manistique residents and drew large numbers of people from the western section of the upper peninsula.

Mrs. Lambert's address was as follows:

Text of Address

"We are gathered here today in one of the most historic places in our state. We have here in our midst representatives of the many nations and races of the world. Yet we are gathered here as one. Each and every one of us with a flavor to enrich or be enriched by the contents of our great American melting pot. We have by the melting pot and blending of mind, strength, and skill, built a wonderful nation, a nation mighty and supreme in the world. These United States of America.

"Today we are here, at the grave of Father Marquette, not to laud in the riches and wealth of our country, but to give homage to that ideal of brotherly love. An ideal so noble and humble, yet more rich and lasting than gold.

"To those Jesuit Fathers who so unselfishly dedicated their lives so that we American Indians might know of that Man, the God-Man Our Savior, Jesus Christ.

"With the spirit and teachings of Jesus, they come, as one of us, into our humble homes, partaking of our food and crude hospitality, giving us courage in our despair, consoling our sick and dying, trying to save us from the many vices which have engulfed us since the coming of the white man, helping us to live, to cope with our changing world.

"Today, then, in the name of all our Indians, I wish to pay our sincerest tribute to those Jesuit Fathers who have lived and worked for our welfare, and especially to you, Father Gagnieur. We pray that your example and your teachings, will forever be an inspiration to us and our children."

You'll really be surprised how good an occasional substantial hot meal will taste if you've subsisted for several days in knickknacks.

To Collect Fees On Money Orders

On and after August 1, 1934, every money order paid within 30 days after date of issue at a post office other than that upon which it was drawn, is subject to collection of a "paid money order fee," of the same amount as the fee collected when the order was issued, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. O. Dreydahl, local postmaster.

For example, on an order drawn for $12.50, the "paid money order fee" collection should be 13 cents, and the balance of $12.37 paid to the payee. This collection fee does not affect orders drawn on the local post office.

JONES, HOLMAN BOARD MEMBERS

James T. Jones and Samuel J. Holman were elected as members of the Gladstone board of education yesterday in a three-way school race that saw Hilmer J. Skogquist, veteran schoolman who sought reelection, defeated. The terms are for three years.

Jones polled a total of 271 votes, Holman 165 and Skogquist 151. One vote was cast for Arnold Froberg. A total of 299 ballots with a total of 588 votes were cast. The polling was about as heavy as ever marked a local school election. Canvassing of the votes will be made Thursday evening with members of the board sitting as a canvassing board.

Police Attempt to Locate Relatives Of Runaway Youth

A fourteen-year-old youth who gave his name as Jaseph Charles and said he formerly lived in Detroit was picked up here by local officers and placed in custody of the county welfare officer, Theodore Ohlen, while efforts are being made to locate some relative of his in the auto city.

Ragged and dirty, the youth was first picked up on Sunday but when left alone for a short while skipped out. He spent the night in a refrigerator car in the yards and yesterday morning a man, who had spent the night in the same car but who hated seeing a lad so young "hitting the road," came to the police station and reported where the boy could be found. He was again picked up.

Sunday, the lad told officers that his name was Stevens and that he was bound for Escanaba where an uncle resided. Checkup revealed that the story was false. Yesterday, he gave the name of Charles and insisted that this was his right name. He told officers that his parents were dead and that he had lived till two months ago with a grandfather in Detroit. He said that his grandfather treated him unkindly and this had led to him leaving.

CHINA OFFERS TRADE FIELD

Development Might Be Way Out of Depression, Says Speaker

That the country of China offers a rich and fertile field for international trade which if taken advantage of by the United States might prove a way out of the depression was the belief expressed before the Gladstone Rotary club yesterday noon by Elder W. C. Hankins, Battle Creek, superintendent of Adventist work in the Upper Peninsula. Hankins, who at the present time is conducting an Adventist conference here, spent 19 years in China as a missionary.

Trade prospects in China are large and the country presents a far better field than does Japan, the speaker stated, citing that Japan at the present time is copying American methods of manufacture and to a great extent even imitating tradenames and trademarks.

The wealth of China is mainly in its undeveloped resources, the speaker said. It is rich in minerals but only few of the mines producing the more valuable metals are worked because of political conditions and lack of transportation. The elder stated that during his years in the country a friend had told him of a rich gold mine in the interior, the location of which he never divulged and which he never attempted to work for it would have been impossible to get to the coast with any of the metal.

Speaking of the people, Elder Hankin extolled their honesty and truthfulness, especially among certain classes. He said that when a rich Chinese pledged a certain amount of money toward missionary work, the money was as good as received.

A certain portion of the people are the opposite and make their livelihood by banditry and kidnaping for ransom. In the latter instances, relatives of the hostage are advised that a certain sum must be paid for release of the victim. This is along the lines of American methods but the Chinese bandits have a little trick of their own to speed up payment. If the money isn't paid as soon as desired, a finger may be severed from the hostage and sent to the relatives with a second message. Continued non-payment may result in forwarding of an ear or a piece of the nose and in many cases, where the relatives lack the money or refuse to pay death ends the torture.

Lack of roads would hamper auto trade, the roads throughout China being only about four to five feet wide, the speaker said, but highways could eventually be developed.

Foreign settlements or concessions in various large cities in China were described by the elder, who said that an American arriving in one of them would be hard put to know that he was really out of America. The foreign settlements are usually governed by one representative of each of the various nationals residing, plus one Chinese.

Extra territoriality which is granted foreigners was also touched upon by the speaker, who said that it was a necessity as Chinese courts were a good example of what courts should not be. Never is justice dispensed. Especially in cases of lawsuits the speaker said, the issue is never in doubt as the man paying the judge the most always wins the case.

In concluding, Elder Hankin pointed out that during the time he was in the country considerable development took place as far as business houses went, department stores having been established by enterprising companies, and streets widened in some of the larger cities. He said that on a whole, though, the country, which contains as it does some 450 millions of people, was untouched commercially and industrially and presented a great and profitable market that Americans should get the vision to reach for.

Next week, Rotarians will forego the regular meeting on Monday and will join Escanaba on Thursday evening to hear Douglas Malloch, the poet, J. M. Olson, R. J. Riley and C. E. Hawkins were named as the committee in charge of local attendance and arrangements.

The annual Upper Peninsula Rotary round-up will be held at Blaney on Saturday, July 28, with the Marquette club sponsoring the event, it was disclosed and Chas. Green, Hugh Cavill and Wm. Skellenger form the committee in charge of the local delegation. Golfing, boating and baseball will be among the entertainments.

Changes On Curb Mostly Unimportant

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Changes on the curb exchange were mostly unimportant today as volume tapered further. Transfers, which approximated only 80,000 shares, were the lowest since March 30, 1933, when 70,000 shares were traded.

Small offerings appeared in some of the alcohol shares. Oils were a trifle irregular. Among the miscellaneous list Lerner Stores provided some excitement with a 4¼ point rise in a moderate turnover.

Hiram Walker dipped around 2 points while Distillers-Corporation-Seagrams slipped a small fraction. Electric Bond and Share, Gulf Oil and Wright Hargreaves also finished with small declines.

Standard Oil of Indiana, Glen Alden Coal, Sherwin Williams and Greyhound Corporation were steady. Swift International advanced nearly a point.

Mrs. Lambert Pays Tribute To Jesuits At St. Ignace Sunday

Mrs. Margaret Lambert, local full-blooded Indian woman in charge of the Manistique Chamber of Commerce tourist information bureau, Sunday delivered a splendid tribute to the Jesuits in behalf of the Indians of the upper peninsula, at colorful exercises held in St. Ignace as part of the Jean Nicolet tercentennial celebration.

Speaking through a loud speaker system, Mrs. Lambert first gave her address in the Ottawa language and then in English. The speaking program was also featured by an address by Father Philip Gordon, the only full-blooded Indian priest in the United States, who is now in charge of a parish in Northern Wisconsin.

Thousands jammed the streets of St. Ignace Sunday in commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the arrival of Jean Nicolet in the upper peninsula. A beautiful pageant in which the arrival of Father Marquette was portrayed, was enacted in the evening. The event was witnessed by a number of Manistique residents and drew large numbers of people from the western section of the upper peninsula.

Mrs. Lambert's address was as follows:

Text of Address

"We are gathered here today in one of the most historic places in our state. We have here in our midst representatives of the many nations and races of the world. Yet we are gathered here as one. Each and every one of us with a flavor to enrich or be enriched by the contents of our great American melting pot. We have by the melting pot and blending of mind, strength, and skill, built a wonderful nation, a nation mighty and supreme in the world. These United States of America.

"Today we are here, at the grave of Father Marquette, not to laud in the riches and wealth of our country, but to give homage to that ideal of brotherly love. An ideal so noble and humble, yet more rich and lasting than gold.

"To those Jesuit Fathers who so unselfishly dedicated their lives so that we American Indians might know of that Man, the God-Man—Our Savior, Jesus Christ.

"With the spirit and teachings of Jesus, they come, as one of us, into our humble homes, partaking of our food and crude hospitality, giving us courage in our despair, consoling our sick and dying, trying to save us from the many vices which have engulfed us since the coming of the white man, helping us to live, to cope with our changing world.

"Today, then, in the name of all our Indians, I wish to pay our sincerest tribute to those Jesuit Fathers who have lived and worked for our welfare, and especially to you, Father Gagnieur. We pray that your example and your teachings, will forever be an inspiration to us and our children."

SUMMER DIETS

A good thing to do about the diet in hot weather is to eat what most appeals to you. And don't eat when you don't feel like it. Remember, though, to intersperse a few hot dishes with the cold ones, whether you think you want them much or not. You'll really be surprised how good an occasional substantial hot meal will taste if you've subsisted for several days in knickknacks.

To Collect Fees On Money Orders

On and after August 1, 1934, every money order paid within 30 days after date of issue at a post office other than that upon which it was drawn, is subject to collection of a "paid money order fee," of the same amount as the fee collected when the order was issued, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. O. Dreydahl, local postmaster.

For example, on an order drawn for $12.50, the "paid money order fee" collection should be 13 cents, and the balance of $12.37 paid to the payee. This collection fee does not affect orders drawn on the local post office.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Inertia tightened its hold on the share market today with the result that transfers on the stock exchange ebbed to a record low for the past decade at 315,902 shares. Volume was the smallest since the unofficial figure of 306,000 shares recorded for June 2, 1924.

Barely showing signs of life, the market prolonged its drift in a narrow range. The vacation atmosphere combined with speculative uncertainty and timidity in undertaking operations under the eye of the federal control commission to hold down trading.

A rebound in steel operations, a spurt of $2 a bale in cotton on a smaller acreage report than had been expected and favorable June sales figures by the General Motors Corp. failed to disturb the sleep of the equities division.

The trading pace quickened a little toward the finish, chiefly as a result of liquidation in moving picture shares. Loew's, one of the most active issues of the session, sold off more than a point and Warner Bros. preferred dipped 3½ points in a thin market. Selling in the movie group was ascribed to reports of dwindling theater attendance and the drive for better films.

Coca Cola, Cuban American Sugar preferred, Minneapolis Honeywell Register, and American Sugar Refining sold at new 1934 peaks on advances of about 1 to 3 points. General Railway Signal, Bayuk Cigar and U. S. Industrial Alcohol also got up 2 to 3 points in thin trading.

New York, July 9 (AP)—U. S. government securities again showed the way for the highest grade bonds in today's loans market. While gains were not exceptionally large, many peak prices for the past year or longer were recorded.

Quiet buying continued, as in recent sessions, and transfers totalled only $11,545,000, par value, of which the federal turnover accounted for about $4,330,000. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.6.

Bonds that equalled or bettered their best levels for 1934, or for several years, included some of American Telephone, Santa Fe, Atlantic Refining, Bethlehem Steel, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, K. C. Terminal, Liggett & Myers, Long Island Railroad, Lorillard, Louisville & Nashville, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania Power, Texas Corp., Trumbull Steel and Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Warner Bros. 6s lost 2 points, probably in sympathy with the action of the amusement stocks which are reflecting partly the summer decline in attendance. There were scattered losses of fractions to around a point in some of the secondary groups. Few issues, however, were subjected to any severe pressure.

Oie and Elliott Elected Members Of School Board

Munising, Mich., July 9 (Special)—Four candidates came forward today to seek membership on the Munising township board of education by the slip route. Oscar Oie, Munising druggist, was elected to succeed F. E. Marsh as treasurer and Harris G. Elliott, electrician at the Munising Paper company, succeeds E. O. Erickson as trustee.

Mr. Oie received 205 votes, Mr. Elliott, 200. Edward Dauzy, candidate for treasurer, received 117 votes and Albert Oas, former city clerk of Munising, received 112 for the office of trustee.

Because no one had qualified as a candidate before the closing date it was necessary for all candidates to run on slips.

Munising Resident Pays Fine Tribute To George Prior

The following fine tribute to the memory of the late George Prior is written by Mrs. George A. Lelphart, of this city, and given to the Escanaba Press for publication:

Word has been received here that George Prior, once light keeper of the east channel light, died on June 12th in Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Prior had been in very poor health for two or three years. It is fitting that a tribute be paid to his memory at this homecoming time, inasmuch as he was a pioneer of this community, being located at the east channel light for fourteen years, and buying, paying for and receiving the first deed for the first lot sold in Munising. Mrs. Prior still has the deed, although the lot has changed hands several times, being the property of the late Louis Miller at the time of his death.

The Prior family, George, Jr., Grace, Willis, Ridley and Madeline, were all born on Grand Island, Mrs Prior being attended only by Mrs. Anna Powell as midwife. This was real pioneering. Many a time on account of storms it was almost impossible to get from the light to Powell's Point. The shifting sands around the light kept receding and the whole building was once moved back to keep it from pitching forward into the water. Mr. and Mrs. Prior have both told how during bad storms when the building was in such danger the whole family would remain up and dressed all night ready to leave. That is the reason we now have a range light in Munising since the east light had to be moved back so far, to a firmer foundation that boats were unable to see the light far enough to protect them from the rocks. When the light was built here Mr. Prior was the first keeper and remained for several years until he and his family decided to go west.

Mr. Prior was an Englishman a kindly, fearless man and it is said that no matter how bad the storm he would go alone to any vessel in distress. At one time he saved the lives of nine people from a boat that foundered during a terrible storm. He was the first one to go to the Manhattan, a big freighter that foundered in the east channel in sight of Munising.

Much is said and written about heroes but too much cannot be said about this man, who for years with his little family, lived isolated lives, enduring many hardships people now could not think of doing. Ridley, the youngest son died soon after the family went west and George, Jr. also passed on during the flu epidemic. Of his family Mrs. Prior, Grace, Willis and Madeline still survive.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Hartell of Grand Rapids, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Leiphart, Elm avenue, the last few days. They were accompanied here by Mrs. Elsie Hite, Mrs. Leiphart's sister, who will be a summer guest here.

Mrs. Alice McCoy, of Grand Forks, N. Dak., Mrs. John Nugent, of Packenham, Ont., sister of Ed Levy of this city, Kathleen Green, R. N., of New York City and Miss Nellie Green, of Arnprior, Ont., nieces of Mr. Levy, are guests at the Levy home.

Ed Levy, who went to Ann Arbor several weeks ago to receive medical treatment has returned to Munising much improved in health.

U. S. Marshall and Mrs. R. B. Hill, of Marquette, were guests of Mrs. Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Leiphart during the homecoming celebration.

Several candidates for the office of trustees of the Munising township school district put in an appearance for election yesterday morning, taking the slip route. There were no names on the ballot. Those seeking election yesterday were Harris G. Elliott, Oscar E. Oie, George E. Dauzy and Albert Oas.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Leiphart and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Heckathorn are vacationing at "Gull Lodge, the Leiphart home on Au Train river.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bearup, of Petoskey, spent homecoming week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gerow, East Superior street. Mr. Bearup was formerly bookkeeper for the Michigan Tanning & Extract Co.

The closing date for filing petitions with the county clerk for state and county offices at the coming election is July 24th at 4:00 in the afternoon. To date there have been no petitions filed with the county clerk although several have signified their intention otherwise of becoming candidates for county office. All the present county office holders have said that they would be candidates for reelection and two or three others have announced.

Rev. and Mrs. John Clemens, of Traverse City, arrived in Munising Friday, and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bjornstad and Mr. and Mrs. William Duffett for several weeks.

By Sophie Kerr

It was as easy as Jane had said. Amy soon found, to arrange to stay. Mrs. Lowe was willing to look after Amy's house and promptly sent on a supply of clothes, with a letter saying, "Stay as long as you like and have a good time. It will keep you from missing Howard so much. Indeed, I don't see why you shouldn't stay until he comes back if you want to, though I don't know to what lengths Jane's hospitality will run. Remember me to her. I know you are glad to be with her again."

Amy handed the letter to Jane to read. "Your mother's a grand person," said Jane. "She never was one of the Marburg whispering gallery. But even she wouldn't be so willing to have you stay if she knew about me. She never liked me much."

"We don't need to play truth every minute," said Amy, "but I'll go on with it to the extent of reminding you, Miss Jane, that you never tried very hard to make yourself liked. You were the one who always does it to annoy because you know it teases."

"I supose I was. It seems a long time ago in another world, another age. I feel so old, Amy. Old and hideous under a bad spell."

"Lie down and I'll play to you." For the piano had come and was a great resource. Amy played or practiced when she did not feel like talking. The days were too hot to go out in. Emma marketed and cooked and Amy and Jane lived quiet and withdrawn in the semi-twilight of the apartment, with nothing to do except try to keep cool. Because Amy insisted, Jane bought a few infants' clothes and also consulted a doctor. She knew of no one in particular, so they chose the nearest, a man with an office at the corner. He seemed sensible and capable, but very detached and professional, his interest for the case, not the human being. Jane's unmarried state did not seem to surprise him, but he did raise his voice in protest when she said she would not go to a hospital. Amy listened to the dispute between Doctor Lacey and Jane with mingled anxiety and amusement, for each was obstinacy to the hilt. In the end Jane won out and Doctor Lacey reluctantly said he would attend her in her home. "I'll send you a nurse when it's time for you to have one," he said firmly.

"It's my risk," she said.

New York, July 9 (AP)—Inertia tightened its hold on the share market today with the result that transfers on the stock exchange ebbed to a record low for the past decade at 315,902 shares. Volume was the smallest since the unofficial figure of 306,000 shares recorded for June 2, 1924.

Barely showing signs of life, the market prolonged its drift in a narrow range. The vacation atmosphere combined with speculative uncertainty and timidity in undertaking operations under the eye of the federal control commission to hold down trading.

A rebound in steel operations, a spurt of $2 a bale in cotton on a smaller acreage report than had been expected and favorable June sales figures by the General Motors Corp. failed to disturb the sleep of the equities division.

The trading pace quickened a little toward the finish, chiefly as a result of liquidation in moving picture shares. Loew's, one of the most active issues of the session, sold off more than a point and Warner Bros. preferred dipped 3½ points in a thin market. Selling in the movie group was ascribed to reports of dwindling theater attendance and the drive for better films.

Coca Cola, Cuban American Sugar preferred, Minneapolis Honeywell Register, and American Sugar Refining sold at new 1934 peaks on advances of about 1 to 3 points. General Railway Signal, Bayuk Cigar and U. S. Industrial Alcohol also got up 2 to 3 points in thin trading.

The rank and file, however, stayed in a rut, with fractional gains balancing small declines. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks was unchanged at 78.5.

New York, July 9 (AP)—U. S. government securities again showed the way for the highest grade bonds in today's loans market. While gains were not exceptionally large, many peak prices for the past year or longer were recorded.

Quiet buying continued, as in recent sessions, and transfers totalled only $11,545,000, par value, of which the federal turnover accounted for about $4,330,000. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.6.

Bonds that equalled or bettered their best levels for 1934, or for several years, included some of American Telephone, Santa Fe, Atlantic Refining, Bethlehem Steel, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, K. C. Terminal, Liggett & Myers, Long Island Railroad, Lorillard, Louisville & Nashville, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania Power, Texas Corp., Trumbull Steel and Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Warner Bros. 6s lost 2 points, probably in sympathy with the action of the amusement stocks which are reflecting partly the summer decline in attendance. There were scattered losses of fractions to around a point in some of the secondary groups. Few issues, however, were subjected to any severe pressure.

Munising News

Munising, Mich., July 9 (Special)—Four candidates came forward today to seek membership on the Munising township board of education by the slip route. Oscar Oie, Munising druggist, was elected to succeed F. E. Marsh as treasurer and Harris G. Elliott, electrician at the Munising Paper company, succeeds E. O. Erickson as trustee.

Mr. Oie received 205 votes, Mr. Elliott, 200. Edward Dauzy, candidate for treasurer, received 117 votes and Albert Oas, former city clerk of Mnuising, received 112 for the office of trustee.

Because no one had qualified as a candidate before the closing date it was necessary for all candidates to run on slips.

Munising Resident Pays Fine Tribute To George Prior

The following fine tribute to the memory of the late George Prior is written by Mrs. George A. Leiphart, of this city, and given to the Escanaba Press for publication:

Word has been received here that George Prior, once lightkeeper of the east channel light, died on June 12th in Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Prior had been in very poor health for two or three years. It is fitting that a tribute be paid to his memory at this homecoming time, inasmuch as he was a pioneer of this community, being located at the east channel light for fourteen years, and buying, paying for and receiving the first deed for the first lot sold in Munising. Mrs. Prior still has the deed, although the lot has changed hands several times, being the property of the late Louis Miller at the time of his death.

The Prior family, George, Jr., Grace, Willis, Ridley and Madeline, were all born on Grand Island, Mrs. Prior being attended only by Mrs. Anna Powell as midwife. This was real pioneering. Many a time on account of storms it was almost impossible to get from the light to Powell's Point. The shifting sands around the light kept receding and the whole building was once moved back to keep it from pitching forward into the water. Mr. and Mrs. Prior have both told how during bad storms when the building was in such danger the whole family would remain up and dressed all night ready to leave. That is the reason we now have a range light in Munising since the east light had to be moved back so far, to a firmer foundation that boats were unable to see the light far enough to protect them from the rocks. When the light was built here Mr. Prior was the first keeper and remained for several years until he and his family decided to go west.

Mr. Prior was an Englishman—a kindly, fearless man—and it is said that no matter how bad the storm he would go alone to any vessel in distress. At one time he saved the lives of nine people from a boat that foundered during a terrible storm. He was the first one to go to the Manhattan, a big freighter that foundered in the east channel in sight of Munising.

Much is said and written about heroes but too much cannot be said about this man, who for years with his little family, lived isolated lives, enduring many hardships people now could not think of doing. Ridley, the youngest son died soon after the family went west and George, Jr., also passed on during the first flu epidemic. Of his family, Mrs. Prior, Grace, Willis and Madeline still survive.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Hartell of Grand Rapids, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Leiphart, Elm avenue, the last few days. They were accompanied here by Mrs. Elsie Hite, Mrs. Leiphart's sister, who will be a summer guest here.

Mrs. Alice McCoy, of Grand Forks, N. Dak., Mrs. John Nugent, of Packenham, Ont., sister of Ed Levy of this city, Kathleen Green, R. N., of New York City and Miss Nellie Green, of Arnprior, Ont., nieces of Mr. Levy, are guests at the Levy home.

Ed Levy, who went to Ann Arbor several weeks ago to receive medical treatment has returned to Munising much improved in health.

U. S. Marshall and Mrs. R. B. Hill, of Marquette, were guests of Mrs. Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Leiphart during the homecoming celebration.

Several candidates for the office of trustees of the Munising township school district put in their appearance for election yesterday morning, taking the slip route. There were no names on the ballot. Those seeking election yesterday were Harris G. Elliott, Oscar E. Oie, George E. Dauzy and Albert Oas.

By Sophie Kerr

on Jane's duty to her child.

It was as easy as Jane had said, Amy soon found, to arrange to stay. Mrs. Lowe was willing to look after Amy's house and promptly sent on a supply of clothes, with a letter saying, "Stay as long as you like and have a good time. It will keep you from missing Howard so much. Indeed, I don't see why you shouldn't stay until he comes back if you want to, though I don't know to what lengths Jane's hospitality will run. Remember me to her. I know you are glad to be with her again."

Amy handed the letter to Jane to read. "Your mother's a grand person," said Jane. "She never was one of the Marburg whispering gallery. But even she wouldn't be so willing to have you stay if she knew about me. She never liked me much."

"We don't need to play truth every minute," said Amy, "but I'll go on with it to the extent of reminding you, Miss Jane, that you never tried very hard to make yourself liked. You were the one who 'always does it to annoy because you know it teases.'"

"I supose I was. It seems a long time ago in another world, another age. I feel so old, Amy. Old and hideous under a bad spell."

"Lie down and I'll play to you." For the piano had come and was a great resource. Amy played or practiced when she did not feel like talking. The days were too hot to go out in. Emma marketed and cooked and Amy and Jane lived quiet and withdrawn in the semi-twilight of the apartment, with nothing to do except try to keep cool. Because Amy insisted, Jane bought a few infants' clothes and also consulted a doctor. She knew of no one in particular, so they chose the nearest, a man with an office at the corner. He seemed sensible and capable, but very detached and professional, his interest for the case, not the human being. Jane's unmarried state did not seem to surprise him, but he did raise his voice in protest when she said she would not go to a hospital. Amy listened to the dispute between Doctor Lacey and Jane with mingled anxiety and amusement, for each was obstinacy to the hilt. In the end Jane won out and Doctor Lacey reluctantly said he would attend her in her home. "I'll send you a nurse when it's time for you to have one," he said firmly.

And just as firmly Jane replied: "You can send a nurse when I ask for one, and not before."

"You're running a serious risk," he warned her.

All Star Baseball Duel Today at Polo Grounds

GOMEZ FACES CARL HUBBELL

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Major league baseball tomorrow forgets for a day the bitter strife of the middle stages of two heated pennant drives and gives up to the public its heroes for the all-star duel of the American and National League teams in the Polo grounds.

Wednesday it will be business as usual in the two major circuits, with the New York Giants fighting to stave off the surge of the Cubs in the National League while the Yankees pick up again the job of fending off the Detroit Tigers in an effort to make the metropolitan world safe for the first five cent world series since 1923.

Crowd of 52,000

But tomorrow is strictly the day of the faithful from one end of the land to the other as 52,000, all the National League grounds will hold, pack into the stands, while the rest of the 200,000 who voted the makeup of the two teams in a nation-wide pole, along with hundreds of thousands more who didn't, listen in by radio to the resumption of hostilities begun with a 4 to 2 American League victory in Chicago last summer.

There was growing sentiment tonight that this might be the day of the National League, the team Bill Terry, manager of the world champion Giants, will lead from first base against the blasting array Joe Cronin, leader of the Senators, directs from shortstop.

The last time these two tangled, Terry had all the advantage as the Giants plowed Washington under in brisk and decisive fashion in the world series last fall. His great left handed screwball ace Carl Hubbell, was of great comfort to him then, and again tomorrow it will be Hubbell for the National League stars in a southpaw duel at the start against Lefty Vernon Gomez, a pitching battle the baseball world has been looking forward to and arguing about for months.

Though the odds in Jack Doyle's book were 4 to 5 against either and take your choice, there is no questioning the fact that the entire spirit and morale of the National League has been strengthened with the rise of "Lucky" Terry and his Giants.

The American League rooters scoff at this. They figure, and probably with deep wisdom, that a fellow will need more than luck tomorrow throwing them down the alley to the belting array lacking the American League batter.

Four left handed swingers head the list. Gehringer of the Tigers, Manush of the Senators, Ruth and Gehrig of the Yankees and of these the only man hitting under .350 is the immortal Babe. But he wasn't doing so well last year, either, yet his home run clinched the all-star game for the junior circuit in Chicago.

Backing these are three right hand hitters—Higgins of the Athletics, Simmons of the White Sox, and Cronin himself—and again the only man under .330 is the manager of the team. Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, swings around .320 from the portside and precedes the all-American out, Gomez, in the starting lineup.

While Cronin's starting choices are definitely set, with Willis Hudlin of the Indians, Red Ruffing of the Yanks, Tommy Bridges of the Tigers and Jack Russell of the senators, following Gomez on the mound in that order, there is still some uncertainty as to the National League lineup.

Terry seems hard to convince that Gomez will start, but if he does and Cronin insists he will right hand hitters. Joe Medwick, of the Cardinals, and Kiki Cuyler, of the Cubs, will patrol Bill's outfield instead of the left handed swingers Chuck Klein, of the Cubs, and Mel Ott, of the Giants. As a matter of fact, Terry has concentrated all his right hand artillery for the attack on Gomez, whom he calls a fast ball pitcher who can be hit.

Frisch of the Cards, at second, leads off and hits from either side. Pie Traynor of the Pirates, Medwick, Cuyler, Wallie Berger, of the Braves, Travis Jackson of the Giants and Gabby Hartnett, Cubs catcher, all are right hand hitters with averages that need no apology even in American League all-star company. However, Jackson, Terry's first short stop choice, has a sty on his eyelid and probably will be supplanted by Arky Vaughan in the starting lineup.

FANS PICK BIG LEAGUE ACES FOR ALL-STAR GAME

Here are the National and American league stars who will clash in the second annual all-star contest, at the Polo Grounds (background), in New York July 10. With a few alterations by Managers Joe Cronin and Bill Terry, chosen because they piloted the teams participating in the 1933 world series, the players represent the choice of America's baseball public as expressed in a poll. The first game, held last year in Chicago, resulted in a 4 to 2 victory for the American leaguers. (Associated Press Photos)

WESTERN MEET STARTS TODAY

BY CHARLES A. GRUMICH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Oklahoma City, July 9 (AP)—Several leading contenders in three 1934 major tournaments played so far flanked by numerous sectional and state champions, wound up practice rounds today preparatory to the western amateur golf championship which gets under way tomorrow with the first half of a 36-hole qualifying test.

The field passed 150 and was expected to exceed 200 with the addition of belated tee entries. Included were defending champion Jack Westland, member of the U. S. Walker cup team, and two former champions, Johnny Lehman and the veteran Charles (Chick) Evans, all of Chicago.

Keefe Carter, another former western champion on whose home course, Twin Hills, the tourament will be played, was prevented by illness from entering, and Johnny Dawson, who has been touring the course near par in practice, likewise had not filed an entery.

Charley Yates of Atlanta, national collegiate titleholder, and the man he beat out of the championship, Ed White of Texas, both were in, along with Walter Emery of Oklahoma, 1933 collegiate champion.

Leland Hamman, a lightweight from Waco, Texas, who conquered Johnny Goodman to win the trans Mississippi crown at Dallas recently, was entered, but Goodman was not. David Goldman of Dallas, trans-Mississippi medalist, telegraphed officials today he would play the first 18 holes of his qualifying round late tomorrow. The second 18 is scheduled for Wednesday, two 18-hole matches for Thursday and 36 hole competition through the finals billed for Sunday.

Dragoons Lose 3-2 Tilt to Manistique City Team Sunday

Manistique, July 9 (Special)—Over 400 Manistique baseball fans witnessed a hard fought battle at the Schoolcraft county fairgrounds Sunday afternoon when the Manistique City team rode home a winner over the Manistique Dragoons, 3-2, in a contest staged to settle the municipal baseball supremacy. The City team's victory was not earned without some exciting moments as the Dragoons, after being held scoreless for eight innings by O. Chartier, staged an uprising in the last frame to shove over two runs.

The City team after shoving over a run in the first frame, won the game in the fifth when they slammed out three hits, one a home run by Frenchy Oliver, to produce two tallies. The losers counted their brace of tallies in the ninth when Chartier made a wild pitch with runners on second and third.

Hits were at a premium Sunday as Chartier allowed but five bingles and the City team could glean but four off the deliveries of Freeland and LaBrasseur. Chartier fanned eleven while Freeland and LaBrasseur whiffed six.

Perkins Triumphs Over Rock Spartans

Rock, Mich. Trailing until the eighth inning, Perkins rallied in that frame, scored the winning run in the ninth without a hit, defeating the Rock Spartans at the local athletic field Sunday afternoon. The game, ending 10-9, was the typical slam bang affair usually staged by the two teams.

What was more interesting about the game was the fact that Perkins scored their ten runs on only six hits while the Spartans could only register nine on 14 hits. The secret is that the Spartans did the great juggling act most of the afternoon and committed no less than eight errors, a majority of which figured directly in the scoring.

A strong wind hampered the pitchers' control greatly and neither of the two starting pitchers, Logan and Rabideau, finished the game. Logan retired in favor of Brown after allowing four runs in less than three innings, while Rabideau abdicated in the fifth with five runs chalked against him. Neven, who relieved him, was charged with the loss of the game, while Brown was credited with the win.

Jokela and Arnold Sayen, of the Spartans, were the hitting stars of the game, each getting three hits, while MacNamara led the visitors with two hits.

All Star Baseball Duel Today at Polo Grounds

GOMEZ FACES CARL HUBBELL

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, July 9 (AP)—Major league baseball tomorrow forgets for a day the bitter strife of the middle stages of two heated pennant drives and gives up to the public its heroes for the all-star duel of the American and National League teams in the Polo grounds.

Wednesday it will be business as usual in the two major circuits, with the New York Giants fighting to stave off the surge of the Cubs in the National League while the Yankees pick up again the job of fending off the Detroit Tigers in an effort to make the metropolitan world safe for the first five cent world series since 1923.

Crowd of 52,000

But tomorrow is strictly the day of the faithful from one end of the land to the other as 52,000, all the National League grounds will hold, pack into the stands, while the rest of the 200,000 who voted the makeup of the two teams in a nation-wide pole, along with hundreds of thousands more who didn't, listen in by radio to the resumption of hostilities begun with a 4 to 2 American League victory in Chicago last summer.

There was growing sentiment tonight that this might be the day of the National League, the team Bill Terry, manager of the world champion Giants, will lead from first base against the blasting array Joe Cronin, leader of the Senators, directs from shortstop.

The last time these two tangled, Terry had all the advantage as the Giants plowed Washington under in brisk and decisive fashion in the world series last fall. His great left handed screwball ace, Carl Hubbell, was of great comfort to him then, and again tomorrow it will be Hubbell for the National League stars in a southpaw duel at the start against Lefty Vernon Gomez, a pitching battle the baseball world has been looking forward to and arguing about for months.

Though the odds in Jack Doyle's book were 4 to 5 against either and take your choice, there is no questioning the fact that the entire spirit and morale of the National League has been strengthened with the rise of "Lucky" Terry and his Giants.

The American League rooters scoff at this. They figure, and probably with deep wisdom, that a fellow will need more than luck tomorrow throwing them down the alley to the belting array backing the American League hurler.

Four left handed swingers head the list—Gehringer of the Tigers, Manush of the Senators, Ruth and Gehrig of the Yankees—and of these the only man hitting under .350 is the immortal Babe. But he wasn't doing so well last year, either, yet his home run clinched the all-star game for the junior circuit in Chicago.

Backing these are three right hand hitters—Higgins of the Athletics, Simmons of the White Sox, and Cronin himself—and again the only man under .330 is the manager of the team. Bill Dickey, Yankee catcher, swings around .320 from the portside and precedes the all-American out, Gomez, in the starting lineup.

While Cronin's starting choices are definitely set, with Willis Hudlin of the Indians, Red Ruffing of the Yanks, Tommy Bridges of the Tigers and Jack Russell of the senators, following Gomez on the mound in that order, there is still some uncertainty as to the National League lineup.

Terry seems hard to convince that Gomez will start, but if he does—and Cronin insists he will—right hand hitters, Joe Medwick, of the Cardinals, and Kiki Cuyler, of the Cubs, will patrol Hill's outfield instead of the left handed swingers, Chuck Klein, of the Cubs, and Mel Ott, of the Giants. As a matter of fact, Terry has concentrated all his right hand artillery for the attack on Gomez, whom he calls a fast ball pitcher who can be hit.

Frisch of the Cards, at second, leads off and hits from either side. Pie Traynor of the Pirates, Medwick, Cuyler, Wallie Berger, of the Braves, Travis Jackson of the Giants and Gabby Hartnett, Cubs catcher, all are right hand hitters with averages that need no apology even in American League all-star company. However, Jackson, Terry's first short stop choice, has a sty on his eyelid and probably will be supplanted by Arky Vaughan in the starting lineup.

FANS PICK BIG LEAGUE ACES FOR ALL-STAR GAME

Here are the National and American league stars who will clash in the second annual all-star contest, at the Polo Grounds (background), in New York July 10. With a few alterations by Managers Joe Cronin and Bill Terry, chosen because they piloted the teams participating in the 1933 world series, the players represent the choice of America's baseball public as expressed in a poll. The first game, held last year in Chicago, resulted in a 4 to 2 victory for the American leaguers. (Associated Press Photos)

WESTERN MEET STARTS TODAY

BY CHARLES A. GRUMICH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Oklahoma City, July 9 (AP)—Several leading contenders in three 1934 major tournaments played so far flanked by numerous sectional and state champions, wound up practice rounds today preparatory to the western amateur golf championship which gets under way tomorrow with the first half of a 36-hole qualifying test.

The field passed 150 and was expected to exceed 200 with the addition of belated tee entries. Included were defending champion Jack Westland, member of the U. S. Walker cup team, and two former champions, Johnny Lehman and the veteran Charles (Chick) Evans, all of Chicago.

Keefe Carter, another former western champion on whise home course, Twin Hills, the tourament will be played, was prevented by illness from entering, and Johnny Dawson, kho has been touring the course near par in practice, likewise had not filed an entery.

Charley Yates of Atlanta, national collegiate titleholder, and the man he beat out of the championship, Ed White of Texas, both were in, along with Walter Emery of Oklahoma, 1933 collegiate champion.

Leland Hamman, a lightweight from Waco, Texas, who conquered Johnny Goodman to win the trans-Mississippi crown at Dallas recently, was entered, but Goodman was not. David Goldman of Dallas, trans-Mississippi medalist, telegraphed officials today he would play the first 18 holes of his qualifying round late tomorrow. The second 18 is scheduled for Wednesday, two 18-hole matches for Thursday and 36-hole competition through the finals billed for Sunday.

Dragoons Lose 3-2 Tilt to Manistique City Team Sunday

Manistique, July 9 (Special)—Over 400 Manistique baseball fans witnessed a hard fought battle at the Schoolcraft county fairgrounds Sunday afternoon when the Manistique City team rode home a winner over the Manistique Dragoons, 3-2, in a contest staged to settle the municipal baseball supremacy. The City team's victory was not earned without some exciting moments as the Dragoons, after being held scoreless for eight innings by O. Chartier, staged an uprising in the last frame to shove over two runs.

The City team after shoving over a run in the first frame, won the game in the fifth when they slammed out three hits, one a home run by Frenchy Oliver, to produce two tallies. The losers counted their brace of tallies in the ninth when Chartier made a wild pitch with runners on second and third.

Hits were at a premium Sunday as Chartier allowed but five bingles and the City team could glean but four off the deliveries of Freeland and LaBrasseur. Chartier fanned eleven while Freeland and LaBrasseur whiffed six.

Perkins Triumphs Over Rock Spartans

Rock, Mich.—Trailing until the eighth inning, Perkins rallied in that frame, scored the winning run in the ninth without a hit, defeating the Rock Spartans at the local athletic field Sunday afternoon. The game, ending 10-9, was the typical slam bang affair usually staged by the two teams.

What was more interesting about the game was the fact that Perkins scored their ten runs on only six hits while the Spartans could only register nine on 14 hits. The secret is that the Spartans did the great juggling act most of the afternoon and committed no less than eight errors, a majority of which figured directly in the scoring.

A strong wind hampered the pitchers' control greatly and neither of the two starting pitchers, Logan and Rabideau, finished the game. Logan retired in favor of Brown after allowing four runs in less than three innings, while Rabideau abdicated in the fifth with five runs chalked against him. Neveu, who relieved him, was charged with the loss of the game, while Brown was credited with the win.

Jokela and Arnold Sayen, of the Spartans, were the hitting stars of the game, each getting three hits, while MacNamara led the visitors with two hits.

Children Flocking To Sunshine Camp, A Great Project

Newberry—On a high and wooded bluff overlooking Lake Superior and the sandy crescent of Big Bay there are around 75 children from all parts of the peninsula. They have been coming in since the middle of May and soon there will be 110 of them. They are from various sorts of homes, all of the working class, and they have at least one thing in common; they are underweight. That is the reason for their presence at Sunshine Camp sponsored and maintained by the Michigan Children's Fund and administered by the staff of the Northern Children's Clinic of which Miss Alma Morse of Marquette is the director.

The experience of the seven youngsters, five boys and two girls, who went up from Luce county was the experience of all. The group, comfortably packed in the nurse's car and attended by two adults, left Newberry on a bright morning. First "goodbye" was said to the mothers and the rest of the kids. Mother was smiling; this was the sort of a chance she would have liked in many cases for several of her brood. "Please take five" pleaded one mother of eight. The kids? Well, for them it was just one long picnic. Many of them had brothers in CCC camps, or sisters who went to Michigamme or out to a lake for a week. It was the thing to go to a camp. Sure, they wanted to go.

The trip was uneventful. Shortly after noon the group arrived at the Northern Clinic. One lad discovered seven chairs in a row, marshalled the group to them and were sitting in state when the two adults had arranged for their entering. Here they were given lunch, with two rides in an elevator, the first any of them had ever experienced. Then Dr. Cooperstock, Fund physician, examined each of them. Miss Bertha Swanson, Luce welfare nurse, had spent many thoughtful hours on the selection of the group, in conferences with the parents and with physicians and health workers, and in making careful histories of each child. Everything was right. No one had any communicable disease, all had received the necessary "shots" for diptheria and small pox, all were within the age limits of eight to twelve and all of them needed a little extra poundage and were from homes where that poundage would be retained when they returned.

The 30 mile journey through the rocky, wooded country to Big Bay seemed to take longer than all the rest of the journey.

"New Kids"

The road twisted and turned and at last arrived at the town of Big Bay where the pair of brick gates indicated the handsome farm settlement, former home of a wealthy man who had arranged the use of the place for the camp. The road turned between sightly white fences and the car stopped when a group of youngsters came tumbling out of the big white barn.

"Gosh, see the new kids."

"Hello. My name's Raymond. What's yours?"

These were the greetings and a dozen offered escorts were accepted for the short drive to the main cottage. The youngsters were all dressed in grey striped coveralls and most of them had already achieved a fine coat of tan.

Miss Thelma Stegeman formerly of Belle View hospital New York and now a member of the University of Michigan staff in the department of health and hygiene, is director of the camp. She with her staff of 14 assistants and councellors chart every moment of the waking and sleeping hours of their charges.

All A Game

They gather for inspection before breakfast, each child turning hands, lifting chin, and all the rest of it so that the nurse can see that they are washed and free from disease. They march in to the meals good wholesome food and all they can eat, and sing as they pile up their dishes and carry them out to the big tables where they are washed.

After breakfast, the groups are taken for the special studies to which they are assigned. Handicraft, nature study, first aid, and all the rest of it. Then comes play time with games no more exciting than the special child can stand. Then dinner, then rest and play and study, then supper and an hour of play. Bed time comes early.

The girls sleep in the house, in the garage fitted with comfortable cots with fine warm blankets and the doors netted against insects. The boys sleep in the great barn where no animals have been kept for several years. Each stall holds two cots. The boys have put up shelves and have each his own possessions. Every child knows what to do and how to do it, not because each has been taught excepting for the first small group, but they learn from each other.

And are they happy! They run and laugh and sing. They take out their blankets to the grass and take long sun baths. They soon turn brown as little Indians and they eat as though they could never be filled.

July Fourth

On July Fourth the Huron Mountain Club remembered them with firecrackers and fireworks and two men to set them off. They also sent over ice cream, strawberries, watermelon. A service club in Marquette one day sent out 75 candy bars.

The councellors are Don Archambeau of Teacher's college in Marquette, Marjorie Goddard of the University of Michigan, Connie Nelson of Ishpeming, Mildred Larson of the University of Michigan, Florence Hurla of St. Joseph's hospital, Hancock, Winifred Spooner from the Kalamazoo Teacher's college.

"Cookee"

The cook is an important person at Sunshine Camp. She is a close friend of every child and adult there. Mrs. Anna Engstrom from one of the college fraternity houses in Marquette has this honored position and was on the receiving end of a song in her honor at supper the night the reporter was there. Other members of the staff are Ingeborg Olson of Big Bay, Pauline Hayes of Munising and Josephine Engstrom, Helen Burton, Ruth McDonald, Bob Burton and Kimball Hatch, all of Marquette.

When night has come and the long shadows from the woods back of the farm begin to reach out over the camp towards the bay, when the barn swallows twitter above and the tree-toads begin to sing, each child tucked in his bed, is visited by one of the staff. A cup of milk and a graham cracker is served and any difficulties of the day are settled.

The Children's Fund of Michigan have done many fine things for the children of that state, and not the least among them is the Sunshine Camp at Big Bay.

WAR ORPHAN TO FRANCE

Little 13 years old Jacqueline Walker is now on her way to France to visit for at least six months at the home of her grandparents in Nevers, just outside of Paris. Jacqueline was completely orphaned when her mother died a year and a half ago. She lived with the parents of her step father until officials began the long and difficult task of deciding just what should be done for her. Her mother had on her death bed requested that the child be sent to France, to the country where she had met and been courted by the American doughboy, Jack Walker. Jacqueline at first wanted to go but later changed her mind and her step father, Lynn Cole and his family did all they could to keep here here.

The case attracted considerable attention, and included various international dealings and court appearances as well as a near riot when Jacqueline was about to take the train in Detroit on the first lap of the long journey.

Since then the little girl has been in charge of the Michigan Children's Aid and has written to local authorities that she is anxious to see the home of her mother. She will visit at least six months. If at the end of that time she does not wish to stay in France she will be returned, the family in France, the Pierre Bouchard's having posted money for that return.

Children Flocking To Sunshine Camp, A Great Project

Newberry—On a high and wooded bluff overlooking Lake Superior and the sandy crescent of Big Bay there are around 75 children from all parts of the peninsula. They have been coming in since the middle of May and soon there will be 110 of them. They are from various sorts of homes, all of the working class, and they have at least one thing in common; they are underweight. That is the reason for their presence at Sunshine Camp sponsored and maintained by the Michigan Children's Fund and administered by the staff of the Northern Children's Clinic of which Miss Alma Morse of Marquette is the director.

The experience of the seven youngsters, five boys and two girls, who went up from Luce county was the experience of all. The group, comfortably packed in the nurse's car and attended by two adults, left Newberry on a bright morning. First "goodbye" was said to the mothers and the rest of the kids. Mother was smiling; this was the sort of a chance she would have liked in many cases for several of her brood. "Please take five" pleaded one mother of eight. The kids? Well, for them it was just one long picnic. Many of them had brothers in CCC camps, or sisters who went to Michigamme or out to a lake for a week. It was the thing to go to a camp. Sure, they wanted to go.

The trip was uneventful. Shortly after noon the group arrived at the Northern Clinic. One lad discovered seven chairs in a row, marshalled the group to them and were sitting in state when the two adults had arranged for their entering. Here they were given lunch, with two rides in an elevator, the first any of them had ever experienced. Then Dr. Cooperstock, Fund physician, examined each of them. Miss Bertha Swanson, Luce welfare nurse, had spent many thoughtful hours on the selection of the group, in conferences with the parents and with physicians and health workers, and in making careful histories of each child. Everything was right. No one had any communicable disease, all had received the necessary "shots" for diptheria and small pox, all were within the age limits of eight to twelve and all of them needed a little extra poundage and were from homes where that poundage would be retained when they returned.

The 30 mile journey through the rocky, wooded country to Big Bay seemed to take longer than all the rest of the journey.

"New Kids"

The road twisted and turned and at last arrived at the town of Big Bay where the pair of brick gates indicated the handsome farm settlement, former home of a wealthy man who had arranged the use of the place for the camp. The road turned between sightly white fences and the car stopped when a group of youngsters came tumbling out of the big white barn.

"Hello. My name's Raymond. What's yours?"

"Just in time for supper, strawberry short cake?"

These were the greetings and a dozen offered escorts were accepted for the short drive to the main cottage. The youngsters were all dressed in grey striped coveralls and most of them had already achieved a fine coat of tan.

Miss Thelma Stegeman formerly of Belle View hospital New York and now a member of the University of Michigan staff in the department of health and hygiene, is director of the camp. She with her staff of 14 assistants and councellors chart every moment of the waking and sleeping hours of their charges.

All A Game

They gather for inspection before breakfast, each child turning hands, lifting chin, and all the rest of it so that the nurse can see that they are washed and free from disease. They march in to the meals—good wholesome food and all they can eat, and sing as they pile up their dishes and carry them out to the big tables where they are washed.

After breakfast, the groups are taken for the special studies to which they are assigned. Handicraft, nature study, first aid, and all the rest of it. Then comes play time with games no more exciting than the special child can stand. Then dinner, then rest and play and study, then supper and an hour of play. Bed time comes early.

The girls sleep in the house, in the garage fitted with comfortable cots with fine warm blankets and the doors netted against insects. The boys sleep in the great barn where no animals have been kept for several years. Each stall holds two cots. The boys have put up shelves and have each his own possessions. Every child knows what to do and how to do it, not because each has been taught excepting for the first small group, but they learn from each other.

And are they happy! They run and laugh and sing. They take out their blankets to the grass and take long sun baths. They soon turn brown as little Indians and they eat as though they could never be filled.

July Fourth

On July Fourth the Huron Mountain Club remembered them with firecrackers and fireworks and two men to set them off. They also sent over ice cream, strawberries, watermelon. A service club in Marquette one day sent out 75 candy bars.

The councellors are Don Archambeau of Teacher's college in Marquette, Marjorie Goddard of the University of Michigan, Connie Nelson of Ishpeming, Mildred Larson of the University of Michigan, Florence Hurla of St. Joseph's hospital, Hancock, Winifred Spooner from the Kalamazoo Teacher's college.

TO RELOCATE RURAL ROUTE

Mail Will Be Delivered to Families Along Highway US-41

Authorization was received yesterday from Washington to relocate the Ford River Switch-Escanaba portion of Escanaba rural free delivery route No. 1 from the old State Road to Highway US-41. Postmaster Regina Cleary announces. The change will go into effect August 1.

The relocation will mean that about sixty families, who have settled in recent years along the paved highway, will be able to get their mail delivered to their homes, instead of having to call at the general delivery window at the Escanaba postoffice. These persons will have until the first of the month to install mailboxes.

The Escanaba rural route is now 33.825 miles in length, and will be increased one mile by the relocation.

Airplanes which spread poisonous sodium arsenite dust in front of the advancing insects are being used to rid Africa of the swarm of locusts which are destroying the crops.

The red wood used in pencils, fence posts, and cedar chests is not cedar, but juniper. The cedar is an Old World tree.

LIQUOR CASES GO OVER TERM

Defendants Plead Not Guilty in Delta Circuit Court

Defendants in most of the liquor law violation cases bound over to circuit court entered pleas of not guilty or stood mute when arraigned before Judge Frank A. Eight defendants pleaded not guilty Monday, and seven pleaded guilty, in criminal cases. The latter group is scheduled to appear for sentence this morning at 9 o'clock.

Alleged liquor law violators for whom pleas of not guilty are entered were: Ella Strassman, two charges; Mrs. Charles Gudzunas, Mrs. Edna Milciewicz, George Payne, Eva Bougie and Frank Skok, all of Escanaba. Edward J. Johnson of Gladstone, charged with negligent homicide, stood mute, and a plea of not guilty was entered. Another case to go over to next term was that of William LaCrosse, charged with larceny, an appeal from justice court.

Those who pleaded guilty were: E. Ballard, liquor law violation, two charges; Albert Rockstead, disorderly person; Thomas Lyons, unlawfully driving away an automobile; John Johnson, entering chicken coop in day time with intent to steal; Joseph C. Theatres

The wicked eighties and the gay nineties may have been just that, but Time is a jokester and in this year 1933 A. D., the days of Chuck Connors, Steve Brodie, John L. Sullivan and Carrie Nation, with their honky tonks, their spectacular bridge jumps, their bare-knuckled fights and their saloon wrecking, are richly, deliciously and frequently riotously funny.

At least, audiences at the Delft theatre where it is showing for the last times, today, are finding "The Bowery," the feature with which the new 20th Century Pictures launches its production program for United Artists release, good for deep-hearted laughter from the moment Chuck Connors enters the scene and gets mad because his rival Steve Brodie, has thrown rotton "mushmelons" all over the front of his saloon, to the final fade-out when Chuck and Steve, friends at last, march away to put a speedy end to the Spanish-American War.

Wallace Beery and George Raft play Connors and Brodie respectively, and Jackie Cooper, completing the star triumvirate, is Swipes, a newsie who lives with Chuck until Chuck brings home a girl he rescued from somo white slavers. Swipes doesn't hold with women and with being neat and tidy, and when Church gives him a sound warming on the spot intended for spankings, Swipes leaves home covered with chagrin.

More than 100,000 applications for new inventions and devices pour into the United States patent office each year.

How New Tire SENSATION smashes DEPRESSION BARRIERS!

Tremendous welcome of new "G-3" — marvel tire that gives 43% more non-skid mileage — keeps Goodyear factories and dealers on jump!

Warning!

Look at the NON-SKID in the center of this tread—the spot that counts, because that's where the tread contacts the ground. When it comes to safety, insurance figures show that 5½ times as many accidents are due to skidding as to blowouts and punctures combined. Remember this when others try to duplicate what the "G-3" gives you: You have to have "NON-SKID" before any tire can give you "NON-SKID MILEAGE" and safety—and you have to have GoodyearSupertwist beneath this type of tread to make it a real success.

A 1934 success story that shows how the American people will buy when you build what they want

LANK and angular he stood there—one of the nation's greatest research engineers. Conviction shone in his eyes as he spoke these words:

"If it were up to me to whip depression, I'd put a big billboard in front of every factory in the land, with this burning message: 'GIVE US SOMETHING NEW AND GOOD AND WE WILL BUY IT'—signed 'THE AMERICAN PUBLIC'."

There is more than psychology in that statement—there is truth—and here's the finest evidence in the world—the evidence of sales.

How a tire started a stampede

Ten weeks ago people opened their morning papers and read the story of a new tire—a spectacular tire—known by the factory job number "G-3".

Eagerly eyes ran through the facts—for here was something the people wanted—a tire proved by grueling days and nights on the test fleet—a tire with 43% longer non-skid mileage than the former All-Weather—a tire that kept its grip twice as long as other tires tested against it.

Then things happened! By the thousands and tens of thousands car owners headed for Goodyear dealers. All over the country they demanded the new "G-3".

This is no exaggeration. You should see the reports that rolled into headquarters at Akron. Excited dealers wrote, wired, called in by phone.

"We're breaking sales records!" "We're swamped with business!" We're having the biggest sales in history!" "We're selling whole sets of the new "G-3"." "Sold 37 tires"—"sold 50 tires"—"sold 200 tires the first day," ran the figures from all over the country.

The non-skid stayed on these "G-3's" longer than any tire I ever used. H. S. H., Myers, Fla.

I have received 50% more non-skid from these "G-3's" than I ever got before. H. T. H., Adena, O.

These tires have run 21,000 miles . . . the non-skid still appears on the tread. R. H., Orlando, Fla.

The "G-3" is the answer to the motorist's prayer. W. D. W., Salisbury, Pa.

All over the country . . . car owners headed for Goodyear dealers

I saved myself from a serious accident because of the wonderful grip on your new "G-3". O. G., Portland, Ore.

I have received more than double the mileage . . . and the diamond tread is still showing. A. G. R., Clarksburg, W. Va.

. . . these "G-3" tires have delivered the best non-skid mileage that I have ever obtained. E. M. W., Hartford, Conn.

After 15,000 miles the tread on these "G-3" tires looks almost like new. Any previous tires were smooth or went out of service before 15,000 miles. J. P. S., Portsmouth, O.

What you get in the "G-3" All-Weather

Such instantaneous success sprang from this vital fact—Goodyear actually had a wonder tire—had actually spent close to two years developing, testing, perfecting it.

And here's what this great new "G-3" gives you:

A tread with the extra-durability and extra-resilience of patented Goodyear Supertwist beneath it to stand up under the extra weight and strain—

Tribute to the record and achievements of Attorney A. H. Ryall, who died on March 20 of this year, was paid by members of the Delta county bar association at a memorial ceremony in the Delta county court room at Escanaba Monday afternoon. The ceremony took place at 2 p. m., and following its completion court was adjourned for the day.

Attorney H. J. Rushton acted as chairman, and the first action was the adoption of a memorial resolution, read by Attorney James E. Frost, associate of Attorney Ryall for many years.

Others of the bar association who spoke informally of their associations with Attorney Ryall, and of their high regard for his character, reputation and ability, included: Attorneys, H. J. Rushton, Judd Yelland, M. Robert Deo, T. E. Strom, C. E. Lewis, president of the Delta bar association; W. J. Miller, prosecuting attorney; Glenn W. Jackson and James E. Frost.

A talk by Judge Frank A. Bell closed the session. Judge Bell characterized Attorney Ryall as a "fighter" when carrying on a law case, with a thoroughness typical of the "old school" of lawyers, and a charming conversationalist out of court.

"His death challenges us," said Judge Bell, "to ask ourselves whether we are leaving a record to be proud of, one that will be a contribution to the welfare of those who follow behind."

Cattle Poisoned On Garden Farm; Bran Bait Blamed

Accompanied by Dr. L. J. Heiden, county veterinarian, Sheriff William E. Miron was called to Garden to investigate the poisoning of a herd of cows on the James Tatrow farm, which resulted in the death of at least six of the cows and violent illness of others, which have a bare chance to recover.

Indications pointed to grasshopper bait as the probable cause of the poisoning. The bait, which is composed of bran, salt, and molasses, with a poison base of sodium arsenite, had been spread out to kill off young grasshoppers, but the man in charge of the distribution had apparently left the bran mixture lying in chunks instead of spreading it out thinly in the pasture to which the cattle had access.

In order to definitely determine the cause of death, Dr. Heiden took stomach samples which will be sent to East Lansing for analysis, and Sheriff Miron is warning farmers to use extreme care in following directions regarding the spreading of poison bait. According to instructions given by the agricultural department, bait spread thinly is just as effective in killing hoppers, will cover more ground, and will avoid the danger of poisoning.

INDIA IS TOPIC IN ROTARY CLUB

Missionary Shaw Tells Of Conditions In Orient

"Behind the dirt and filth which passing tourists see as their impression of India, there is a great people, a great country," said the Rev. H. E. Shaw, returned missionary from the land of Punjab in northwest India, who was the guest speaker at the Escanaba Rotary club meeting Monday.

"When you speak of India, you are speaking of something big", said the speaker, pointing out that the nation was one of widely varied conditions, with 180 languages, 550 dialects, 2,000 social castes, and 700 provinces and states.

The province in which he was stationed, The Rev. Shaw said derived its name from "the land of five rivers", the Indus and its four tributaries, the Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi and Sutlej, all of which have their sources in the Himalayas which are one of the boundaries of Punjab.

Debt Is Enemy

This northern province where he has been working, the missionary said, was made up of a stronger, sturdier, healthier people than those in the south of India, but their big handicaps of poverty and debt are much the same. The average cash income for a family was given at $30 a year, and the activities of the missionaries and the government has been directed toward lessening the poverty in this nation which is 90 per cent rural.

A rural reconstruction program has been launched by the government, in which the missionaries are assisting. Better cattle, better seeds, hardier oxen for draft purposes, and improved water supply conditions are a part of the program, which on the other side is fighting the drains on the income, which are marriage, litigation, death and ornaments.

"Debt is my special enemy," said the Rev. Shaw. He said that 80 per cent of the people were in debt, with an average debt of $100, and interest on debts taking an average of 80 per cent of the income of the families.

The natives are also strong for buying ornaments, and in many cases buy gold jewelry for their wives while letting their children starve or fall victim to insects and disease rather than buy needed quinine and mosquito netting. Court action in petty quarrels also is a drain on income which the government is trying to discourage in effecting settlements in disputes. Marriages cost the father much money, due to the custom of bestowing gifts and making an elabarote ceremony for daughters given in marriage.

Gandhi A Politician

Touching on the political situation in India, the speaker alluded to the civil disobedience campaign of Mahatma Gandhi, one of the troubles in a nation which is continually in an upset politically. Round table conferences so far have failed to get results, one faction of the nation demanding complete independence from Britain. Gandhi's campaign, he said, was launched to help the suppressed class of Hindus, and in this, Gandhi was acting as a politician. Instances of political persecution of those Christians who refused to join political groups was reported. Gandhi's "untouchables" were so named because of the fact that those of high caste think that they are polluted if they come in contact with the suppressed class.

About one-half the population of Punjab is Mohammedan, and nearly two-fifth Hindus. There are over two million Sikhs and 66,000 Christians. The main food in Punjab is wheat, which is also the main crop. Pulse, the pulp of a pea-like growth, is also a part of the limited diet. Some corn, cotton, sugar, jute and rice are produced, though rice is not grown extensively in the north of India.

The Rev. Shaw came to the Rotary meeting as a guest of O. V. Thatcher, and was introduced by W. J. Clarke of the program committee. It was announced that the next meeting, on Thursday, July 19, would be ladies night and joint meeting with the Gladstone club at the Delta hotel. The meeting will open at 6:15 with a dinner, and the speaker of the evening will be Douglas Malloch, well known locally as a writer of poetry.

Fire Prevention Was Main Job Of Cedar River CCC

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., July 9.—Work in fire prevention and tree planting occupied the attention of the men of civilian conservation corps camp, SP 9, near Cedar River, during the month of June, according to a report forwarded to CCC headquarters by the camp superintendent.

Fire hazards of forty acres of land were reduced, and a half mile of M 35 was cleared for prevention of fires, it was reported. Truck trails through the forest were constructed. The camp now has the use of a caterpillar tractor and grader, according to the superintendent's report.

Over 30,000 white and Norway pine seedlings were planted during the spring by the men of this camp. The thirty acres remaining to be planted will be planted during July, it was learned.

Only 25 of the 57 attempts at crossing the Atlantic in heavier-than-air machines were completed without loss of life.

Escanaba Councilman to Be Democratic Candidate

Councilman John Luecke of Escanaba announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator from the Thirtieth senatorial district in the September primary election.

Selkirk Photo
John Luecke

Mr. Luecke made his decision to run after members of Escanaba Local No. 209, International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, and representatives of other labor organizations adopted, at a meeting held Sunday night in the Odd Fellows hall, a resolution, urging him to become a candidate.

Mr. Luecke was elected to the Escanaba city council by a heavy vote, leading the field of five candidates. He was born in Escanaba and has lived here his entire lifetime, excepting for the period of world war service.

He is employed at the Escanaba Paper company. As secretary of the local Paper Makers' Union and president of the Escanaba Trades and Labor Council, he has been active in union affairs. During the last several years, he also has been engaged as a labor organizer in the upper peninsula and northeastern Wisconsin for the American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Luecke did not announce his platform yesterday, but he informed the Press that he would actively champion during the campaign the county reform amendment proposal, upon which the people will vote in the November election.

He is the only Democratic candidate for the state senatorship of this district, which comprises the counties of Delta, Menominee, Alger, Schoolcraft, Luce, Chippewa and Mackinac. Benjamin Gero, well known Manistique businessman, was drafted recently by Republicans of this district to become a candidate, after the incumbent, W. F. Doyle of Menominee, had announced he would not seek reelection.

This Game Of Politics

Peter A. LeClaire, 918 Superior avenue, Gladstone, will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county clerk in September primary, according to word received from the office of the Democratic county committee. Thus far, he is the only Democrat to seek this office. County Clerk R. H. Labre is the only Republican to announce.

LeClaire was reared in Nahma, and has been employed as a fireman for the Soo Line railway for more than a score years.

There will be two Democratic candidates for county coroner this fall, it was learned yesterday. One is William Mileski, incumbent, and Dr. W. A. Corcoran is the other. Dr. C. J. Bartley, a Republican, is Delta county's other coroner.

Friends of Atty. Denis McGinn are reported to be urging him to seek the Republican nomination for prosecuting attorney. McGinn served as assistant to Glenn W. Jackson of Gladstone when the latter was prosecutor. Atty. McGinn, however, is non-committal concerning his political plans.

John Luecke, member of the Escanaba city council and prominent union labor leader, has decided to become a candidate for the state senatorship from this district on the Democratic ticket. Benjamin Gero of Manistique is the Republican candidate. They are seeking the office to be vacated by W. F. Doyle of Menominee, who has decided not to run because of the press of private business. Doyle, who is advertising and sales manager of the Lloyd Manufacturing company, was elected in the fall of 1932, succeeding H. J. Rushton of Escanaba, who retired from politics after serving three terms in the senate. Rushton sponsored the measure, which resulted in the establishment up the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba.

Supervisor James Dotsch of Garden township is being mentioned in some quarters as a possible candidate for representative from Delta county in the state legislature on the Democratic ticket. The present representative, Peter R. Legg, also a Democrat, has already announced that he is a candidate for reelection. E. R. Carter of Gladstone, former representative, is the only Republican candidate for this office to formally announce his intentions. Dotsch, who is in his thirties, is no novice in the game of politics. A number of years ago, he served as the "boy mayor" of Garden village, having been elected to the office shortly after reaching voting age. He is the son of the late Atty. Henry Dotsch of Escanaba. Supervisor Dotsch is engaged in the commercial fishing business.

The total for June 1934 is 270,779 tons, while June 1933 had but 88,898 tons. Out of the 1934 total, 183,565 tons were handled at the C. & N. W. docks, and 87,214 at the Milwaukee Road docks.

The same increase is noted in the total for the year up to July 1. Shipments up to July 1 last year totalled 105,164 tons, while the total for this year is 442,526 tons.

For all Upper Lake ports, the total June shipments increased from 1,281,269 tons in 1933 to 4,460,807 tons in 1934, or 248.15 percent. Up to July 1 last year the record was 2,265,013 tons, and this year it is 7,091,385 tons, an increase of 213.08 percent.

MEET GUY BUSH...star pitcher for the Chicago Cubs! Guy won 20 games last year...pitched in all 264 innings...and he's pitching at an .800 clip this year. Like many athletes, Guy has found that at the end of a gruelling match, nothing brings back his energy and vitality like a Camel.

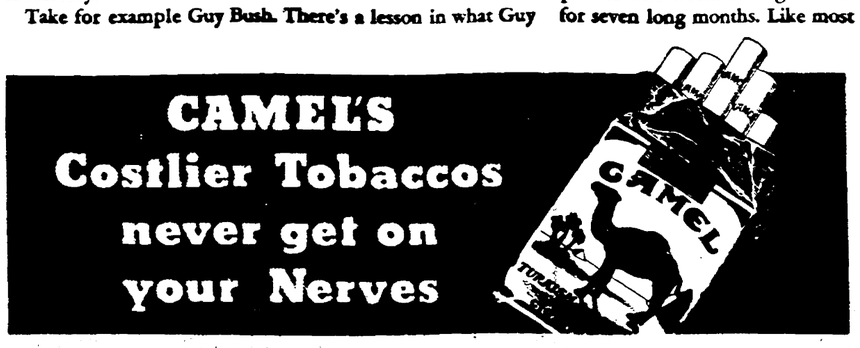
When you feel "used up"—smoke a Camel! Fatigue and irritability fade away. Your flow of natural energy snaps back to a higher level in a few minutes.

This experience is well known to millions of Camel smokers. It has been confirmed by a famous New York research laboratory.

Take for example Guy Bush. There's a lesson in what Guy has to say about the "energizing effect" in Camels:

"Bases full, one out, and a strike. I'm watching the bases and the batter, too. Now I've got to pitch. The pitch—and it's two strikes! Will he strike out? You think so...and yet you can't tell. Baseball is full of tough spots that take it out of a pitcher who works his regular turn and stands up to the grind for seven long months. Like most of the big-league pitchers, I smoke Camels. And when I come out of a game after nine hard innings there's nothing that lifts up my energy the way a Camel does. I feel freshened up in no time at all. I smoke a lot. Camels never interfere with my nerves!"

Learn to "get a lift with a Camel" whenever your energy runs low. Smoke as constantly as you like. The finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS in Camels never upset the nerves.



CAMEL'S Costlier Tobaccos never get on your Nerves

● Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS —Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

You must RELAX these BUSY DAYS
"I DON'T SEE HOW I CAN CROWD IN ALL I HAVE TO DO THIS AFTERNOON."
"THAT WAS A GRAND IDEA! I'VE BEEN GOING ALL DAY AND STILL..."
..FEEL GREAT!"

When the days aren't long enough to crowd in all the things you must do ... shopping ... bridge ... guests for dinner ... stop a minute. Relax. Drink a bottle of sparkling satisfying Pabst Blue Ribbon. You, too, will find that its refreshing coolness rests you ... But don't spoil your remedy by drinking ordinary beer. Make sure that you get Pabst Blue Ribbon—pure and full flavored, with a distinctive taste that has made it America's first choice. Order a case today for your refrigerator.

New York, July 9 (AP)—Inertia tightened its hold on the share market today with the result that transfers on the stock exchange ebbed to a record low for the past decade at 315,902 shares. Volume was the smallest since the unofficial figure of 306,000 shares recorded for June 2, 1924.

Barely showing signs of life, the market prolonged its drift in a narrow range. The vacation atmosphere combined with speculative uncertainty and timidity in undertaking operations under the eye of the federal control commission to hold down trading.

A rebound in steel operations, a spurt of $2 a bale in cotton on a smaller acreage report than had been expected and favorable June sales figures by the General Motors Corp. failed to disturb the sleep of the equities division.

The trading pace quickened a little toward the finish, chiefly as a result of liquidation in moving picture shares. Loew's, one of the most active issues of the session, sold off more than a point and Warner Bros. preferred dipped 3½ points in a thin market. Selling in the movie group was ascribed to reports of dwindling theater attendance and the drive for better films.

Coca Cola, Cuban American Sugar preferred, Minneapolis Honeywell Register, and American Sugar Refining sold at new 1934 peaks on advances of about 1 to 3 points. General Railway Signal, Bayuk Cigar and U. S. Industrial Alcohol also got up 2 to 3 points in thin trading.

The rank and file, however, stayed in a rut, with fractional gains balancing small declines. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks was unchanged at 78.5.

New York, July 9 (AP)—U. S. government securities again showed the way for the highest grade bonds in today's loans market. While gains were not exceptionally large, many peak prices for the past year or longer were recorded.

Quiet buying continued, as in recent sessions, and transfers totalled only $11,545,000, par value, of which the federal turnover accounted for about $4,330,000. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues advanced one-tenth of a point to 86.6.

Bonds that equalled or bettered their best levels for 1934, or for several years, included some of American Telephone, Santa Fe, Atlantic Refining, Bethlehem Steel, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, K. C. Terminal, Liggett & Myers, Long Island Railroad, Lorillard, Louisville & Nashville, Norfolk & Western, Pennsylvania Power, Texas Corp., Trumbull Steel and Wheeling & Lake Erie.

Warner Bros. 6s lost 2 points, probably in sympathy with the action of the amusement stocks which are reflecting partly the summer decline in attendance. There were scattered losses of fractions to around a point in some of the secondary groups. Few issues, however, were subjected to any severe pressure.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, July 9 Staggered by an almost record breaking big increase of the United States wheat visible supply, wheat values reeled heavily downward today.

The increase of stocks of domestic wheat in sight was 8,215,000 bushels the past week, against only 948,000 bushels increase at this time last year. Lowest prices of the day and since May 16 were current at the last.

Despite downturns of hog values and of grains, the provision market advanced, with packers leading as buyers.

Munising, Mich., July 9 (Special)—Four candidates came forward today to seek membership on the Munising township board of education by the slip route. Oscar Oie, Munising druggist, was elected to succeed F. E. Marsh as treasurer and Harris G. Elliott, electrician at the Munising Paper company, succeeds E. O. Erickson as trustee.

Mr. Oie received 205 votes, Mr. Elliott, 200. Edward Dauzy, candidate for treasurer, received 117 votes and Albert Oas, former city clerk of Mnuising, received 112 for the office of trustee.

Because no one had qualified as a candidate before the closing date it was necessary for all candidates to run on slips.

Munising Resident Pays Fine Tribute To George Prior

The following fine tribute to the memory of the late George Prior is written by Mrs. George A. Leiphart, of this city, and given to the Escanaba Press for publication:

Word has been received here that George Prior, once lightkeeper of the east channel light, died on June 12th in Hollywood, Calif. Mr. Prior had been in very poor health for two or three years. It is fitting that a tribute be paid to his memory at this homecoming time, inasmuch as he was a pioneer of this community, being located at the east channel light for fourteen years, and buying, paying for and receiving the first deed for the first lot sold in Munising. Mrs. Prior still has the deed, although the lot has changed hands several times, being the property of the late Louis Miller at the time of his death.

The Prior family, George, Jr., Grace, Willis, Ridley and Madeline, were all born on Grand Island, Mrs. Prior being attended only by Mrs. Anna Powell as midwife. This was real pioneering. Many a time on account of storms it was almost impossible to get from the light to Powell's Point. The shifting sands around the light kept receding and the whole building was once moved back to keep it from pitching forward into the water. Mr. and Mrs. Prior have both told how during bad storms when the building was in such danger the whole family would remain up and dressed all night ready to leave. That is the reason we now have a range light in Munising since the east light had to be moved back so far, to a firmer foundation that boats were unable to see the light far enough to protect them from the rocks. When the light was built here Mr. Prior was the first keeper and remained for several years until he and his family decided to go west.

Mr. Prior was an Englishman—a kindly, fearless man—and it is said that no matter how bad the storm he would go alone to any vessel in distress. At one time he saved the lives of nine people from a boat that foundered during a terrible storm. He was the first one to go to the Manhattan, a big freighter that foundered in the east channel in sight of Munising.

Much is said and written about heroes but too much cannot be said about this man, who for years with his little family, lived isolated lives, enduring many hardships people now could not think of doing. Ridley, the youngest son died soon after the family went west and George, Jr., also passed on during the first flu epidemic. Of his family, Mrs. Prior, Grace, Willis and Madeline still survive.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Hartell of Grand Rapids, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Leiphart, Elm avenue, the last few days. They were accompanied here by Mrs. Elsie Hite, Mrs. Leiphart's sister, who will be a summer guest here.

Mrs. Alice McCoy, of Grand Forks, N. Dak., Mrs. John Nugent, of Packenham, Ont., sister of Ed Levy of this city, Kathleen Green, R. N., of New York City and Miss Nellie Green, of Arnprior, Ont., nieces of Mr. Levy, are guests at the Levy home.

Ed Levy, who went to Ann Arbor several weeks ago to receive medical treatment has returned to Munising much improved in health.

U. S. Marshall and Mrs. R. B. Hill, of Marquette, were guests of Mrs. Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Leiphart during the homecoming celebration.

Several candidates for the office of trustees of the Munising township school district put in their appearance for election yesterday morning, taking the slip route. There were no names on the ballot. Those seeking election yesterday were Harris G. Elliott, Oscar E. Oie, George E. Dauzy and Albert Oas.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Leiphart and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Heckathorn are vacationing at "Gal" lodge, the Leiphart home on Au Train river.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bearup, of Petoskey, spent homecoming week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gerow, East Superior street. Mr. Bearup was formerly bookkeeper for the Michigan Tanning & Extract Co.

The closing date for filing petitions with the county clerk for state and county offices at the coming election is July 24th at 4:00 in the afternoon. To date there have been no petitions filed with the county clerk although several have signified their intention otherwise of becoming candidates for county office. All the present county office holders have said that they would be candidates for reelection and two or three others have announced.

Rev. and Mrs. John Clemens, of Traverse City, arrived in Munising Friday, and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bjornstad and Mr. and Mrs. William Duffett for several weeks.

By Sophie Kerr

It was as easy as Jane had said, Amy soon found, to arrange to stay. Mrs. Lowe was willing to look after Amy's house and promptly sent on a supply of clothes, with a letter saying, "Stay as long as you like and have a good time. It will keep you from missing Howard so much. Indeed, I don't see why you shouldn't stay until he comes back if you want to, though I don't know to what lengths Jane's hospitality will run. Remember me to her. I know you are glad to be with her again."

Amy handed the letter to Jane to read. "Your mother's a grand person," said Jane. "She never was one of the Marburg whispering gallery. But even she wouldn't be so willing to have you stay if she knew about me. She never liked me much."

"We don't need to play truth every minute," said Amy, "but I'll go on with it to the extent of reminding you, Miss Jane, that you never tried very hard to make yourself liked. You were the one who 'always does it to annoy because you know it teases.'"

"I supose I was. It seems a long time ago in another world, another age. I feel so old, Amy. Old and hideous under a bad spell."

"Lie down and I'll play to you." For the piano had come and was a great resource. Amy played or practiced when she did not feel like talking. The days were too hot to go out in. Emma marketed and cooked and Amy and Jane lived quiet and withdrawn in the semi-twilight of the apartment, with nothing to do except try to keep cool. Because Amy insisted, Jane bought a few infants' clothes and also consulted a doctor. She knew of no one in particular, so they chose the nearest, a man with an office at the corner. He seemed sensible and capable, but very detached and professional, his interest for the case, not the human being. Jane's unmarried state did not seem to surprise him, but he did raise his voice in protest when she said she would not go to a hospital. Amy listened to the dispute between Doctor Lacey and Jane with mingled anxiety and amusement, for each was obstinacy to the hilt. In the end Jane won out and Doctor Lacey reluctantly said he would attend her in her home. "I'll send you a nurse when it's time for you to have one," he said firmly.

And just as firmly Jane replied: "You can send a nurse when I ask for one, and not before."

"You're running a serious risk," he warned her.

"It's my risk," she said.
